

Officers Use Gas, Clubs to Rout Pickets

Attack Quickly After Order to Disperse Is Ignored PLANT IS GUARDED Court Order Enjoined Strikers From Harassing Workers

North Chicago, Ill. —(AP)— A force of policemen and deputy sheriffs, flailing clubs and firing tear gas bombs, drove a crowd of pickets from the strike-bound Chicago Hardware Foundry company plant today.

The officers, numbering about fifty and recruited from north shore towns, moved to a swift attack after a gathering of between 400 and 500 demonstrators and spectators ignored their order to disperse.

A half dozen women pickets were knocked to the ground. A number of other participants in the battle were struck by stones and bottles but none was injured seriously.

The demonstrators, enjoined from interfering with non-striking workers in a recent court order, retreated to a point three blocks from the plant and remained there while 2) foremen and employees entered the foundry.

The officers placed a tight guard about the plant — closed for six weeks because of a strike called by the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate.

Don't Use Guns
Officers carried guns but did not use them. They fired tear gas from pistols and threw gas bombs. About 50 gas missiles burst within a few minutes.

After the first clash, the pickets retreated, formed their ranks again and gave way anew as the deputies advanced, hurling tear gas bombs into the crowd.

At length, the demonstrators were driven to a point three blocks from the plant. They scattered into nearby fields and made no further attempt to return to the foundry for the time being.

During the battle, the pickets threw stones, bottles and empty tear gas cartridges at the officers. The policemen moved back to the plant after the engagement.

Standing in front of it, wiping tear-streaming eyes, was a lone woman, holding aloft the American flag.

Disregard Order
At the outset, the Demonstrators had been ordered to disperse.

Chief of Police J. M. Neuk of North Chicago went down the line of pickets massed east and west across Commonwealth avenue at the main gate of the plant which has been strikebound six weeks.

The chief told the pickets to disperse within five minutes or the officers would force them to scatter.

The pickets remained at their posts. When the time limit expired, the officers moved in.

In an instant, individual fights between officers and pickets broke out. Officers wielded clubs and blackjacks while loosing the tear gas attack.

Dozens of pickets, watching the officers gathering, had obtained pails of water to wet handkerchiefs for protection from the gas.

Women Knocked Down
The battle began about noon and in the first few seconds five or six women pickets were knocked down. Gasping pickets held the wet cloths to their faces as the gas spread.

One group of about twenty-five pickets, including a few women, was in front of the main gate. Another group of women pickets was at another gate a half block north along Commonwealth avenue.

The plant stretches for two blocks along the East and West street. Across the way are the Chicago North Shore and Milwaukee line tracks and freight depot.

Ohio Convicts Try to Escape by Kidnaping 3 Penitentiary Employees

Guards Swing Clubs to Thwart Attempted Break At Columbus

Columbus, Ohio —(AP)— An Ohio penitentiary guard was stabbed today in a frustrated prison break in which one convict was shot and another badly beaten.

The prisoners tried a daring escape by kidnaping two guards and a deputy warden within the institution walls.

Guard Raymond T. Thornton, stabbed in the abdomen, was in a serious condition.

Clyde Staup, 28, convicted robber, was shot in the groin and side. Charles Menges, 33, sentenced to life for murder of a deputy sheriff, was badly beaten and at first pretended he was shot.

Guard Elmer Callahan fired six shots as the two convicts approached the prison gates menacing with knives Deputy Warden William Walker and two guards. Other guards came rushing out of the guard room swinging clubs and thwarted the escape.

Both prisoners involved in an attempted break Dec. 7, 1936, had been exercising in the prison yard. Heading for Walker's office, they forced two guards to accompany them.

"We want out," they shouted. "You can't out like this," Walker told them.

Judge Rules Part Of Trade Practices Law Is Not Valid

Milwaukee — (AP) — Circuit Judge Charles L. Aarons today held unconstitutional and void a section of the 1937 trade practices law which permits the state to close businesses by injunction for failure to pay code assessments.

The ruling was made in the case of the state against William B. Manske, Milwaukee barber.

Manske's attorney, Gilbert E. Vandercook, challenged the law as unconstitutional after the state sought an injunction to close Manske's business because he failed to pay an $18 assessment under the barbers' code.

Judge Aarons held the law violated provisions of both the state and federal constitutions and that it took away the original jurisdiction of the courts in the issuance of injunctions.

End Testimony in Waukesha County Conspiracy Case

Attorneys to Deliver Final Arguments in Circuit Court

Waukesha — (AP)—Testimony was concluded today and attorneys prepared to deliver final arguments before Circuit Judge Sherman E. Smalley, Judge City, in the case of nine men charged with conspiracy to violate the gambling laws through operation of a slot machine ring.

After Joseph Martin of Delafield, president of the Waukesha County Automatic Merchandisers association, one of the defendants, and Joseph Hayes, Milwaukee, took the stand as defense witnesses, the state called two rebuttal witnesses for brief testimony.

Martin, called to the stand again today, was asked on cross-examination why he had not given receipts to members of the association for dues. He said the secretary-treasurer would have to answer that question.

"Had Enough Troubles"
"Why hasn't the association met since the grand jury went into session?" Prosecutor Roland Steinle asked Martin.

"I've had enough troubles of my own," the defendant replied.

Hayes, an investigator for private attorneys, testified that Raymond C. Agner, Burlington tavernkeeper, told him at one time he turned over $50 to former District Attorney Salen, a defendant, following the July 7, 1937, organization meeting of the association. Hayes said Agner subsequently told him he "nought" he turned over the money, and finally wasn't sure. Agner complained of a disturbed mind and buzzing in his head at the time, Hayes said.

Salen took the stand yesterday to deny he ever had been engaged to protect any illegal interests of the Automatic Merchandisers' association.

Salen said he had received $300 from the association "for legal services, being paid in cash by Anton Vogt, secretary treasurer. To questions by Special Prosecutor Steinle, he answered he had drawn up the association's articles after receiving a rough draft from Joseph Martin, Garfield, Buckeye and Vogt. He did not keep a copy himself, he said.

Truck Driver Is Witness in Senate Probe

Asserts Steel Company Clubbed and Gassed Crowd of 200

UNPROVOKED ATTACK

Testimony Draws Protest From Attorney for Company Officials

Washington —(AP)— A milk truck driver told the senate civil liberties committee today that steel company guards clubbed and gassed a crowd of 200 persons in the Berger Manufacturing company strike at Canton, Ohio, May 27, 1935.

Darrell Smith, the witness, testified the attack was unprovoked. About thirty guards, he said, hemmed in union pickets and onlookers, flooded them with tear gas from the rooftops and closed in with iron clubs.

His description of the street fighting drew a quick protest from T. F. Patton, attorney for officials of the Republic Steel corporation, which controls the Berger company.

"This man is doing a beautiful job," Patton broke in an Smith's graphic narration, "but I request that he stick to the evidence."

Says Women Clubbed
Chairman LaFollette (D-Wis.) replied the committee had permitted some latitude yesterday to Charles M. White, operating vice president of Republic, in his testimony.

Smith, describing the scene as "just about the bloodiest ever enacted in America," said guards clubbed women as well as men. He testified some of those who were knocked to the street were beaten where they lay.

Committee attaches said they expected to complete testimony about the 1935 Berger strike this afternoon and move on to an investigation of the activities of citizens committees in connection with the "Little Steel" strike of 1937.

The committee yesterday heard dramatic testimony of street fighting between union pickets and Berger company officials and guards. One witness said the scrap involved White.

Knocked Executive Down
Paul L. Hamilton, railroad brakeman who formerly was a Canton City bus driver, said he "peeled" the ruddy-faced steel executive on the chin and knocked him down. White, he declared, had acted insolently in ordering pickets off company property.

Replied curtly a few minutes later, White said Hamilton struck him in the back of the neck while

Backs Conviction Of 17 Defendants In Oil Conspiracy

After Corrigan landed in Ireland

This is the first picture of Douglas Corrigan to be received in the United States after the young California airplane mechanic arrived at Baldonnel airport, near Dublin, Ireland. He is shown taking a drink of water after the long flight from New York. He insisted flying to Ireland was a "mistake" and that he had really intended to fly to California. But he seemed pretty happy about it.

Irish Officials Won't Act Against Corrigan for His Failure to Carry Papers

De Valera Congratulates American on Flight Across Ocean

Dublin — (AP)— Prime Minister Eamon de Valera congratulated Douglas G. "Daredevil" Corrigan today on his "wrong way" flight from New York to Dublin.

The prime minister hurried from a cabinet meeting to greet the 31-year-old Californian and hear details of the daring flight in the old $900 plane which Corrigan insisted brought him to Ireland instead of California because of a little "mistake" in direction.

After thanking de Valera for Ireland's kindness, Corrigan, appearing as fresh as if he had just hopped across the Irish sea, visited government buildings to straighten out difficulties arising out of his failure to have any of the papers a flier abroad is supposed to carry.

Officials of Ireland's department of external affairs told him they would place no difficulties in his way.

May Visit London
Corrigan went out to Baldonnel airport to see his "old crate" and disclosed he hoped to visit London to exhibit the plane. There also was some talk he might take the machine to the Glasgow exposition.

"I am not going home without the plane, but I won't fly it," the Californian explained. He said he would take it back by steamer.

Corrigan was $2,000 to the good already as a result of the little "mistake" in direction, having received that much for a radio broadcast to America.

Corrigan's antiquated plane was held by Irish customs officials but he said this was a mere formality.

Tax Commission Acts To Collect $18,592 Dinneen Assessment

Madison —(AP)—Attorneys for the state tax commission today drew up an execution of judgment order in a move to collect an assessment of $18,592 from William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the state public service commission, for alleged unreported income.

The order, which was given to Sheriff Lawrence O. Larson, Dane county, grants the sheriff authority to take any of Dinneen's assets and to garnish any income the former secretary may possess. Sheriff Larson is expected to serve the order some time today. In addition to empowering the sheriff to seize Dinneen's assets, the order restrains Dinneen from disposing of any of his property until the judgment is satisfied.

Commission attorneys said if the assets are found to be insufficient Dinneen will be brought before a court commissioner to determine by adverse examination if there are any additional assets.

The assessment was made on the commission's finding that Dinneen had failed to report $119,000 for taxation for several years dating from 1924.

Judge Fines 12 Firms And 5 Executives Total of $65,000

15 Officials and 3 Firms Ruled Entitled to New Trials

Madison —(AP)—Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone today sustained the conviction of 17 of the 46 major oil company defendants found guilty last January of a conspiracy to raise and fix midwestern gasoline prices in 1935 and 1936. He fined these defendants—12 companies and 5 executives—a total of $65,000.

He completely dismissed the charges as to 10 other executives and one corporation and found that the remaining defendants—15 officials and 3 firms—were entitled to a new trial because they had been linked to the alleged conspiracy only by circumstantial evidence.

William J. Donovan, New York, chief of defense counsel, announced after the ruling that he would appeal to the United States District Court of Appeals at Chicago on behalf of those fined.

In a 16-page decision Judge Stone treated all defendants in three categories: (1) Those whom he held were shown to have combined through gasoline purchasing agreements to "peg" the midwestern market; (2) those whose connection with the conspiracy was subject to doubt; (3) and those who were clearly shown to be innocent.

Among the individual defendants, whose convictions stand, is Charles E. Arnott, New York, vice president of the Socony Vacuum Oil company, alleged by the government to have been the "master mind" of the conspiracy.

Arnott and the following four executives were fined $1,000 each: H. T. Ashton, St. Louis, manager of the Lubrite division, Socony Vacuum Oil company.

Robert W. McDowell, Tulsa, Okla., vice president in charge of sales, Mid-Continental Petroleum corporation.

R. H. McElroy, Chicago, tank car sales manager of the Pure Oil company.

E. E. Lakin, St. Louis, general manager of sales, Shell Petroleum company.

Judge Stone assessed $5,000 fines against each of the following 12 companies:

Socony Vacuum Oil company, Wadham's Oil company, Pure Oil company, Sinclair Refining company, Shell Petroleum corporation, Skelly Oil company, Continental Oil company, Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation, Empire Oil and Refining company, Globe Oil and Refining company of Illinois and Globe Oil and Refining company of Oklahoma.

Defendants whose convictions were upheld will share the trial costs, the exact amount of which had not been determined today.

Verdict Set Aside
Judge Stone set aside the jury verdict and freed the following executives and companies:

Globe Oil and Refining company of Kansas.

A. V. Bourque, Tulsa, Okla., secretary of the Western Petroleum Refiners association.

Dan Moran, Ponca City, Okla., president of the Continental Oil company.

Henry M. Davies, Chicago, president of Pure Oil company.

Jacob France, Baltimore, Md., president of Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation.

Allan Jackson, Chicago, vice president in charge of sales, Standard Oil company of Indiana.

C. L. Jones, New York, vice president of Socony Vacuum company.

Frank Phillips, Bartlesville, Okla., president of Phillips Petroleum company.

Officials Try to Learn if Part of Sidley Estate Is in Province

Paris —(AP)— A booming salute of 101 guns welcomed King George and Queen Elizabeth of England today on their arrival for a visit of state to France.

The boyish-appearing King George, monarch of an empire of nearly 500,000,000 people, came with his consort by boat and train from London to this capital and was greeted by gray-haired Albert Lebrun, titular chief of state for 102,000,000 people.

The visit of the British sovereigns was designed to reaffirm—as did a similar visit by King V in 1914—the common front of two of the world's greatest empires.

The royal train arrived at 4:49 p. m. (9:49 a. m. C.S.T.). The king and queen, smiling broadly, stepped onto the platform and shook hands with King and Madame Lebrun. The president and Madame Lebrun, titular chief of state for 102,000,000 people.

Marines lining the platform presented arms, while a marine band played "God Save the King" and the "Marseillaise."

The appearance of the king and queen brought volleys of cheers from throngs surrounding the station, while the royal salute sounded from the guns of Mount Valerien fort in the western suburb of Paris.

The British royal standard and the French tricolor ran up on gold-covered poles. From a huge cage concealed by banks of flowers, 10,000

Two Men Hunted In $585 Robbery

Fail to Carry Out Threat To Kidnap Youth For Ransom

Chicago —(AP)—Police investigators turned to race track followers today in a hunt for two men who bound, terrorized and robbed A. C. Tarn, wealthy Winnipeg, Man., turfman, and his wife and son last night in their cottage in suburban Lake Zurich.

The gunmen took $585 after threatening to kidnap Tarn's son, Clifford, 19, for ransom.

Police Chief John Gehrke of Lake Zurich said that although the robbers were masked, Tarn reported, one of them looked familiar and might have been a track follower at Arlington park.

The robbers spent 20 minutes in the house, escaping either on foot through shrubbery or in an automobile parked nearby.

Tarn, 46, owns a stable of horses now running at Arlington. He cashed a check for $500 at the track yesterday and it was believed the robbers saw it and trailed him.

Upon their entrance, the robbers said "we want the dough," Tarn denied he had any money.

Dowager Queen Marie's Letters Ask That Her Heart be Buried at Favorite Resort on Black Sea

Bucharest — (AP) — Dowager Queen Marie, in letters opened today, requested dark lilac be the color of mourning and that her heart be buried at her favorite resort on the Black Sea.

King Carol's mother, who figured largely in the destiny of Rumania for a generation, died yesterday of a rare liver disease at the age of 62.

In the letters, written June 29, 1933, the queen mother explained lilac was her favorite color and that she preferred it to the usual black.

Officials said the letters would be made public in a day or two. One of them was addressed to her subjects.

Although the queen will be buried Sunday at the palace of Kurla de Argesch beside her husband, the late King Ferdinand, she requested her heart be embalmed and taken in a special urn to Balic on the Black Sea.

Take Coffin From Palace
During the night 12 high ranking officers of the queen's own regiment, the Fourth cavalry, carried her coffin from her palace at Sinaia, where she died, to the royal palace of Pelesch. Thereafter these officers took turns standing watch in the great hall of the palace, where the queen lay in state.

Dr. Morgan Tells Of Dissension in TVA at Hearing

Says Differences Began Within Month After Agency Was Formed

Knoxville, Tenn.—A story of bitter dissension in the high command of the Tennessee Valley Authority took form here today before a congressional investigation committee.

The witness was Dr. Arthur F. Morgan, ousted chairman of the federal agency, who told the committee differences developed within the TVA board less than a month after congress created the authority in May, 1933.

Dr. Morgan continued testimony started yesterday when he said bickering over matters of policy and procedure marked the early growth of the valley development program. He added that most of his suggestions met opposition from the other two directors, Harcourt A. Morgan, present chairman, and David E. Lilienthal.

The three were "far apart in philosophy," the witness said, explaining he favored "immediate action" in line with President Roosevelt's emergency relief program, but that the other two wanted a delayed "long range" program.

This friction in the TVA eventually led to open charges by Dr. Morgan against his associates. He was ousted as chairman-director by President Roosevelt and has challenged the president's action in a chancery court suit filed here.

Dr. Morgan told the investigators he recommended most of the key men employed in the early days of TVA organization, but insisted he made no effort to "grab power" for himself, as charged by Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan.

He asserted he suggested many of the TVA's major developments, suggestions which he said Harcourt Morgan termed "alarmingly visionary and highly impractical."

The "visionary" projects, he said, included suggestions for (1) immediate construction of Norris dam and erection of a transmission line from Muscle Shoals to the dam site; (2) adoption of a fertilizer program; (3) research in power transmission; and (4) formation of a board to control possible speculation in real estate.

Other claims by Dr. Morgan were that Lilienthal and Harcourt Morgan suggested the TVA had "just two functions—fertilizer and power"; that they were responsible for delaying construction of the town of Norris until "we were actually building the dam"; and employees were "piling up on each other" in such a manner "intimate details" of TVA board meetings leaked out to the press.

His testimony, dealing principally in personalities, was in sharp contrast to that of Harcourt Morgan, who outlined to the committee the scope of the TVA program. Chairman Morgan made no reference to Dr. Morgan.

Harcourt Morgan described the authority as an agency for harnessing unrestrained energy of nature.

He said the TVA had shown the "fundamentals of nature" could be conserved and used in such a way that they were no longer "cumulatively an enemy of human life."

The third member involved in the controversy, Director Lilienthal, is scheduled to testify after Dr. Arthur Morgan.

Another Figure in Harlan Case Meets Death by Violence

London, Ky.—(P)—Death of another figure in the Harlan anti-labor conspiracy case shrouded the reopening of the trial in federal court today — the day on which the dead man had been expected to testify for the defense.

Oscar Skidmore, 22, employee of the defendant Harlan Wallins Coal company, was killed last night in an automobile accident on a highway four miles east of Corbin, Ky., near where a defendant was fatally shot July 6.

The automobile in which Skidmore, Grant Burkhardt, 23, driver, and his father, Floyd, were riding, collided with a truck. The truck driver fled the scene and his identity was not immediately learned.

Skidmore's death brought to four the total of deaths by violence in the course of the trial which entered its tenth week Monday.

Cashier Witness In Trial of Bank Head at Coloma

Says False Bookkeeping Used to Cover Improper Transactions

Stevens Point.—(P)—Trial of Henry F. Bartz, president of the Coloma State bank, on six counts of banking law violations went into its second day today with testimony in the record that false bookkeeping was used to cover up improper transactions before the bank closed.

The testimony was given by Alan A. Gibbs, cashier, who has pleaded guilty to the six identical counts with which Bartz is charged. Judge Byron B. Park indicated sentence of Gibbs would not be pronounced until September.

Bartz is charged with two counts of issuing unsecured certificates of deposit in amounts of $3,500 and $1,000, two counts of making false bookkeeping entries to cover up those transactions, and two counts charging conspiracy.

Gibbs testified that in order to obtain a waiver on a $5,000 account of Gust Wabachel, a depositor, in an attempt to reorganize the bank within 10 days after it closed in January, 1935, he and Bartz decided to issue a $1,500 regular certificate of deposit and a $3,500 irregular one. The unsecured certificate was not entered in the bank's books, Gibbs said.

The cashier testified also that Bartz instructed him to sell a $1,000 bond belonging to Bartz's wife which was being held by a Milwaukee bank for safekeeping. Gibbs said Bartz instructed him to turn over the money to him in cash "so there would be no record of the transaction."

When Mrs. Bartz decided to sell her $1,000 bond, Gibbs said, a certificate of deposit was issued to her by Gibbs on Bartz's orders, and the transaction was charged to the segregated trust account. That was done, he testified, to keep from Mrs. Bartz the information the bond had been sold and the money turned over to her husband.

Health Program Proposals Face Attacks by Officers Of Medical Association

BY STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH Associated Press Science Writer Washington.—(P)—Officials of the American Medical association heaped criticism today on a presidential committee's recommendation for an $850,000,000 government health program.

The far-reaching venture, proposed to the national health conference yesterday, would have two general aims:

1. It would expand general public health facilities, try to eradicate tuberculosis, venereal diseases and malaria, and to control pneumonia and cancer deaths, and develop maternal and child health centers.

2. It would use some state, local and federal funds to build hospitals, maintain free beds and give grants-in-aid for research.

Dispute Results Presentation of the proposal by a committee on medical care appointed by President Roosevelt started an immediate dispute.

Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, Ky., president of the A. M. A., termed the program unworkable. Dr. Hugh Cabot of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., a leader of the "reform" group in the medical association, replied:

"Maintenance of the standards of medical practice by the medical profession as at present organized, has been grossly unsatisfactory."

Dr. Olin W. Drury, secretary of the A. M. A., and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the association's journal, joined Dr. Abell in preparing a more complete criticism of the proposal.

In his first comment, Dr. Abell argued that further studies were needed because medical requirements varied widely in different localities. He added:

"Those people who think that they can devise a centrally controlled medical service plan which can be fitted to the varying conditions of the states, counties and cities of this country are discussing theories which no practical health administrator could possibly approve."

It became apparent the social security board, the children's bureau of the labor department, the public health service and other federal agencies concerned with the nation's health had perfected the federal-state program without the advice of the medical association.

Clifford E. Waller, assistant surgeon general of the public health service, presented a part of it dealing with expansion of general health services which alone would provide up to $200,000,000 annually for public medical care during the next seven years.

Under the program $23,000,000 would be spent in strengthening public health departments in states and counties; $45,000,000 for the control of tuberculosis; $47,000,000 for control of venereal diseases; $22,000,000 for the reduction of pneumonia mortality; $25,000,000 for cancer control; $10,000,000 for malaria control; $10,000,000 for mental hygiene and $20,000,000 for industrial hygiene.

City Council to Vote on Building Inspector's Post

Ordinances to Re-Establish Job. Set Salary Will Be Up Wednesday

Two ordinances, one re-establishing the position of building inspector and the other setting the salary, will be up for the approval of the city council when it meets tomorrow night in city hall.

City Clerk Carl Becker said this morning he has received 12 applications for the post. The ordinances have been published and their adoption will be the most important matter of business confronting the council at tomorrow night's meeting.

Under the recommendations drawn up by the ordinance committee and contained in the ordinances, the inspector would be elected annually by the council on the third Tuesday of April, assuming office May 1. The committee recommended that the salary be $1,600 a year, with a car allowance of $200.

The office of building inspector was consolidated with that of city engineer in 1934. The city engineer also supervises street department work. City officials believe the three jobs over-burden the engineer, and that careful, efficient administration of all cannot be reached under the present system.

The re-creation of the building inspector job is the first step to reach the highest office efficiency in the engineering department. Officials are also studying a proposal to employ another man as head of the street department, directly responsible to the city engineer.

The council also will be called upon to give the stamp of approval to several operators' licenses, two junk dealers' licenses, and two curb and gutter applications.

French President Welcomes British Monarchs on Visit Of State as Throngs Cheer white doves were released as their majesties appeared, a symbol of Franco-British aspirations for peace.

King George and Queen Elizabeth arrived at Boulogne this morning from London and came to Paris over 120 miles of carefully guarded rails which became, in effect, their private line for the occasion. Troops, mobile guards, gendarmes and police guarded the entire route.

King Inspects Guard Premier Edouard Daladier and his cabinet were presented to the sovereigns by Lebrun, after which the king inspected the marine guard.

Then the queen took the arm of the president, Madame Lebrun took the king's arm and the party entered automobiles for a three-mile ride through Paris to the foreign ministry on the Quai D'Orsay, the visitors' home during their four-day Paris stay.

Throngs along the route, estimated at more than 2,000,000, shouted "long live the king" and "long live the queen" as the motor cars, surrounded by mounted spahis in brilliant red, white and blue uniforms and a republican guard in flashing gold helmets, went by.

The king and queen came to France aboard the royal yacht Enchantress.

French naval ships, ranged before the port of Boulogne, boomed a 21-gun salute and hoisted the British flag as the Enchantress entered at 12:30 p. m. (5:30 a. m. C. S. T.).

The battleship Dunkerque, five cruisers and six destroyers formed a double line outside the port, and through this line the Enchantress met in midchannel by seven other French destroyers, passed.

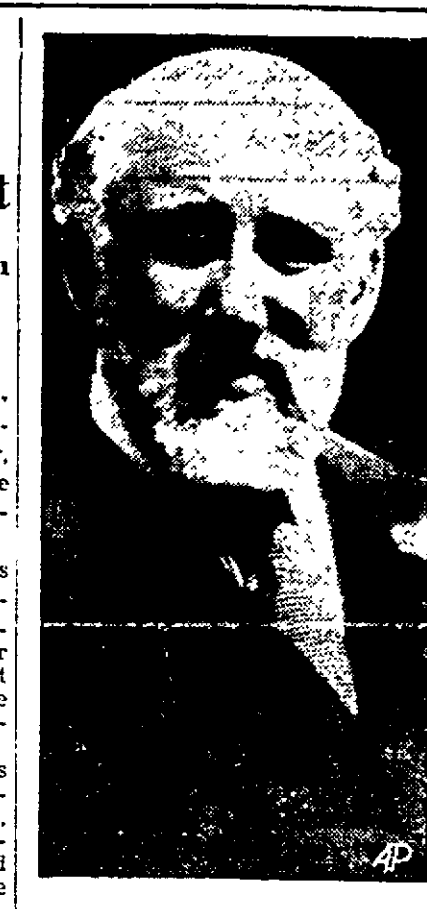

Two more destroyers and two submarines which were at anchor in the harbor joined in the salute to the British monarchs who came to reaffirm the common front of Britain and France, probably stronger than at any time since the World war.

Crews of all ships lined the decks and cheered, while ship's bands broke into "God Save the King."

Land on French Soil The Enchantress steamed into Boulogne as the giant Britannia statue, standing guard at the entrance of the port, was being unveiled.

After a brief exchange of courtesies aboard the Enchantress, the monarchs were taken to the Hotel de Ville.

GETS HORLICK MILLION

W. Perkins Bull (above), at whose home Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, Horlick malted milk heiress, died July 6, was subpoenaed to appear at an inquest into her death at Toronto, Mrs. Sidley's will, made at Toronto, Mrs. Sidley's will, made at Toronto, Mrs. Sidley's will, made at Toronto.

He testified he had been pushed to the ground by White and subsequently had been hit on the head with a blackjack. He said he was not employed by the Berger company but was at the picket line to learn how to prevent disturbances at another steel plant where he is employed.

Hale quoted White as having told the pickets: "You lazy bums, you don't want to work. All you are looking for is trouble and you are going to get it."

White denied this assertion. He also objected to opposing witnesses describing as "thugs" the company's 126 guards during the strike.

"Most of the guards are married men with families and are respected citizens," White said. "More so than some of the people I think I could reach." As he spoke, he turned toward Hamilton, Hale and others sitting across the table.

This brought an admonition from Senator LaFollette, only committee man present, to omit personalities. LaFollette inquired extensively into labor policies of the Republic corporation. He contended the company changed its course in 1934 by refusing to renew contracts with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, an A. F. of L. affiliate. This was the union which called the Canton strike.

White contended, on the other hand, that failure to sign the contracts was caused by the company's belief its employees would be represented better in company unions not controlled by "outsiders."

He said that it has been held by the Wisconsin supreme court that even the word "may" as used in the statutes means "must" or "shall" only in cases where the public interest or rights are concerned and where the public or third persons have a claim that the power shall be exercised.

Breaking Parking Law

2 Motorists Fined for Reckless Driving

Leland Spice, Oconto Falls, escaped with minor bruises when the car he was driving tipped over while he was rounding a curve on a road in the town of Hortonville yesterday afternoon. Another occupant of the car also escaped serious injury, but the car was almost demolished.

Spice pleaded guilty of reckless driving when he appeared in municipal court before Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning and was fined $50 and costs under the state law and $50 and costs under the county statute. The state fine was remitted upon payment of the fine and costs in the county action and the costs in the state action.

New Contingent of Scouts At Camp for Second Week

BY BILL SPENGLER "Ring out the old, ring in the new," was the slogan Sunday as 90 first-week campers arrived at Gardner Dam.

Up early, campers of the previous week gathered their belongings and evacuated their cabins in favor of the incoming youths. Following breakfast and morning detail, Protestant boys conducted their own service in the wooded campfire ring and Catholic scouts held a mass in the Lodge. Final swim period was open to the boys and handcraft work was finished.

Sunday dinner at Camp Gardner dam is a real treat. Besides being the biggest meal of the week, it brings ice cream and chocolate sauce as the climax. During this meal, the weekly awards for honor and satisfactory campers and the pioneer badges are presented. Gold arrows for honor campers in the second year were obtained by Leonard Buckman, Hortonville; Bud Thomas, Troop 2, Appleton; Bud Bevers and Jim Eckrich of Troop 9, Menasha; and Eugene Kilgren, Jack Walsh, Troop 13, Appleton.

Awards Made Red arrow campers who were outstanding last week are Dean Collar, Clifford Hammon, Charles Olk, Ernest Schroeder, and Carlton Orlin, Troop 27, Hortonville; Dick Geiger of Brillion's Troop 48; John Gavronski, Ted Hawkins and James Weiss, Troop 17, Seymour; Junior Cartier, Troop 4, Appleton; Marvin Cohen, Appleton, Troop 16; Bill Younger, Troop 8, Appleton; Bo Balliet, Troop 13, Appleton; Lane Dickenson, Troop 16, Appleton; Tad Shepard, Troop 3, Neenah; and Ralph Suess, Gordon Meier, Tom Loescher, Kenneth Dahms, Mike Hyland from Menasha, Troop 9.

The death of their mother brought at least temporary reconciliation between Queen Marie's two sons, King Carol and Mr. Nicholas Brana.

The king summoned his brother—the former Prince Nicolas, shorn of his titles and in exile in Italy since April 26, 1937, for marrying a commoner—to attend the funeral.

A solemn requiem mass was celebrated by Miron Cristea, prime minister and patriarch of the Rumanian Orthodox church, at the cemetery at Sinaia. The mass marked the beginning of six months' mourning.

Special cheap railroad fares will be instituted to enable poor people to visit Bucharest for farewells to their beloved queen.

Dale Youth of 24 Helps Direct Samp's Campaign

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. Madison.—The youngest political manager in Wisconsin today plunged into the task of organizing a campaign for the United States senate, an office which will be sought by ten or a dozen candidates this year. He is Chester Dorschner of Dale, 24, who eager "to learn politics from the bottom up" has been chosen by Edward J. Samp as one of his agents in the Republican primary senate race.

Dorschner, an Outagamie county farm youth, left Dale to attend the University of Wisconsin six years ago, already interested in what is known as "the great game of politics." At the university he sampled the politics of campus Progressive and Democratic organizations, finally cast his lot with the Republicans, who, however, had little campus representation.

After graduation he took over the management of a weekly newspaper in Delavan, Walworth county, for a year, but soon left it to become a scout for Samp's Republican headquarters in the state legislature, dominated by Progressives.

Earlier this year he assisted Samp then head of the Republican state voluntary campaign committee, in organizing G. O. P. clubs in important counties and an "idea man" in the party.

Now it is his job to tour the state, trying to persuade local party leaders to back the Samp candidacy. Returning from a one week trip through the Fox River Valley counties last week, he is now visiting the southern and southeastern counties.

Dorschner has a headful of new political ideas which he hopes sometimes to sell to the Republican party state leadership. And, sometime in the future—he isn't certain just when—he will take a fling at running for office himself.

Verdict Jan. 22

The jury which had found 16 companies and 3 officials guilty of price-fixing, returned its verdict Jan. 22 after a trial of nearly seven months. It deliberated only seven hours.

Thereafter defense attorneys made motion to set aside the verdict and for new trials. It was ruled on these motions Judge Stone ruled today. He had them under advisement since April 1.

"The indictment charged a conspiracy involving many persons, not all of whom were indicted," the court said. "The acts proved were often known to but few of the defendants. Many of the acts were innocent enough on their face, so that a defendant knowing only what appeared on the surface, might easily have drawn no inference of a violation of the law from mere knowledge of the facts shown."

Discussing the cases of those granted new trials, Judge Stone said:

"That the jury was in a position to make a complete and critical study of the proof as it applied to each defendant separately is at least doubtful. It has taken the court considerable time to do with the aid of the records and the briefs."

Some at Disadvantage

"Once the jury arrived at the conclusion that a conspiracy to fix prices had been in operation, the defendants as to whom only circumstantial evidence had been offered were naturally at a disadvantage in being charged and tried along with large corporations and other individuals definitely shown to have engaged in the conspiracy."

The court devoted about ten pages of his decision to reviewing the evidence of the government that the big companies had sought to control the midwestern market through purchases of surplus gasoline from independent refineries.

Of Arnott and other defendants, whose convictions were upheld, Judge Stone said:

"I am satisfied that there was am-

Showers Likely, Weatherman Says

Fair in City and Vicinity Tomorrow, Milwaukee Bureau Reports

Cloudy tonight, with showers likely, and generally fair tomorrow is the forecast for Appleton and vicinity issued today by the Milwaukee weather bureau. Temperatures will be cool tonight, the bureau reported.

For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 85 and the lowest 66, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

At 1:30 this afternoon, the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 85 degrees. The sky was unsettled today.

Phoenix, Ariz., with 108 degrees and Devils Lake, N. D., with 90, were the hottest and coldest cities respectively in the nation yesterday.

It Is Said--

That Gerald Egan, lively little Irish member of Troop 9 at Menasha, was one of the chief entertainers at Gardner Dam during his stay there with 90-odd other scouts last week.

Anyone who came within hearing distance was the target for his well-placed remarks. As he was leaving, he told "By" Franzer, waif-terfunt man: "Ah, you didn't give me enough service. Twice I yelled at you I was drowning and you didn't do anything about it."

Needless to say, Egan didn't drown.

But some of his troop members evened the count on the way home, it is reported, by revealing that Egan, in a rather roundabout way, obtained a picture of a young lady who interests him. When that charge was leveled at him, he had little to say--for once.

Pageant Player May Be Kin of Man After Whom City Is Named

When a group of members from the Appleton Lions club attended a showing of the Northwest Territory celebration pageant at Watertown last week, they discovered that one of the college students appearing in the cast is named Clifford Appleton.

His home is in Ipswich, Mass., from whence the historic caravan, which will appear here Thursday, started. The Lions members asked the young man whether he was a descendant of Samuel Appleton, the Boston merchant after whom this city is named.

"All of the Appletons in Ipswich and Boston came originally from 'Ipswich,'" the young man said. "I would not say definitely that I am a descendant of Samuel Appleton, but I am quite positive that he was a member of one of our early families. I would not be surprised at all to find that I am a direct relative."

Clifford Appleton's uncle is in the firm of D. Appleton's Sons, publishers. While at Raeme, Clifford visited with an aunt.

Births

A daughter was born today to Mr. and Mrs. John Van Den Heuvel, Kimberly.

A daughter was born to Dr. and Mrs. R. J. O'Keefe, 525 Leves street, Menasha, yesterday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ort, route 2, Black Creek, yesterday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

All were made out to one person. Checking with the concern, Chief Prim found that similar check already was cashed. The checks were sent to the Minneapolis firm today.

Pageant Caravan Will Lead Parade Thursday Morning

Procession to March Down College Avenue From State to Drew

With the Northwest Territory traveling caravan--an ox team, covered wagon, and 35 men--at the head, a parade signaling the opening of the Northwest Territory celebration here will start at 11 o'clock Thursday morning on College avenue at State street. The parade will proceed east on the city's main street to Drew street.

The 36 college students, dressed in the costumes resembling the apparel worn by the pioneers 150 years ago, will present the pageant showing the episodes leading up to the establishment of the Northwest territory and the adoption of the Northwest Ordinance of 1787. The pageant will start at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at Erb park.

The Appleton High school band SOTAL Drum and Bugle corps, about 10 historical floats, and a bicycle parade will be in the line of march behind the pageant caravan.

Members of the Appleton Lions club, sponsor of the celebration, said today that five prizes will be offered to youngsters entered in the bicycle parade. It is planned to have a few old-style bikes, such as those with the big front wheel and those of tandem design. Modern bicycles will be decorated either with an eye toward the beautiful or one toward the humorous. Lions club members said.

Beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a program featuring musical talent, an historical exhibit, Menominee Indian dances and ceremonies, and other Northwest Territory celebration activities will be presented at Erb park.

The players in the pageant will camp on the Roosevelt Junior High school athletic field and use the school showers and other accommodations during their day and night in Appleton. They will leave Friday morning, presenting their pageant that night at New London.

Under the CAPITOLDOME

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD

Madison—Atop the shiny, expensive and massive desk from behind which Wisconsin governors have run the affairs of the state for many years these days are stacked high huge bundles of press clippings from professional clipping services all over the country.

If press notices are an indication of a politician's importance in the world of politics, the governor of Wisconsin just now ranks near the top. Daily they flow in, big, expensive batches of them, to be sorted by the executive staff and arranged to be read by the chief of odd moments of his day. Then they go to the capacious cabinets in the cellar vault, there to be preserved for posterity along with the hundreds of thousands of others garnered by the state's first family through the years.

Today, probably for the first time in his life, Wisconsin's LaFollette is reading a substantial number of laudatory comments from America's press. Especially since his famed third party christening speech have editors, columnists and the newspapers generally reversed themselves from their hitherto anti-LaFollette attitude.

However, the mail one day last week brought a harsh reminder that there are still some who look with distrust and disfavor on LaFollette designs. A national magazine with a tremendous circulation among the types of people the LaFollette appeal usually wins at election time, after noting that fascist dictators have a habit of beginning as radicals, commented:

"And now from Wisconsin comes Gov. Phil LaFollette's announcement of a new party for America—a party of National Progressives who would slay the Communist spectre with one hand while reforming the 'bad boys' of big business with the other. Even America is used to this vague political chatter. But unfamiliar to America is the new party's insignia: a symbol that looks too much like a Nazi swastika."

"It may not be fair to Phil LaFollette to brand him a potential fascist. Perhaps the swastika-like cross, the mysterious symbolism, the spell-binding oratory, the shadowy protests, the vague program are all chance resemblances to the methods of Germany's nazis. Unfortunately, he put himself on record in 1933 when, returning from a German visit, he wrote a series of newspaper articles expressing admiration for many of Hitler's policies. Gov. Phil's platform manner is as grunting and acrobatic as that of Dictator Benito Mussolini."

The piece was liberally sprinkled with news pictures showing Phil's grimaces during his speech launching the new party.

CAPITOL SIGHTS
Senators Mike Mack, Outagamie County Republican, Stalwart, waiting in the governor's anteroom for an interview inside, where he hasn't been for years. Capitol guides mumble embarrassed footnotes to lectures given to summer tourist audiences on the historical meaning of a painting in the supreme court chamber as the result of a discovery by a visiting pedagogue that there is a glaring error in the work.

Glenn Turner, No. 2 Socialist of Wisconsin, arranging petitions to the governor for a special legislative session to enact "adequate" old age pension laws. Clarence Addison Dykstra of the university enduring a long wait for an interview with the governor, along with a well-known lobbyist, a pardon lawyer, and a state senator up for reelection, besides a half dozen other eager visitors with business of miscellaneous nature and varying degrees of importance.

WATCH TEDDY
Progressive politicians who must have something to speculate upon are these days assiduously spreading rumors centering about stolid, bulky and ageing Secretary of State Theodore Dammann, perennial state bookkeeper.

In one corner of the statehouse you will run into a report, secretly told by a visiting legislator, county chairman, or jobholder, that Theodore will be Phil's choice to run for governor this year because Phil has had his fill of the governorship. In another end, inhabited by another school of administration cohorts, you will meet an equally confidential story that Dammann will run for the U. S. senate. The latter has reached the dignity of print, accompanied by the charge that Dammann is being promoted by A. W. Zeratsky, the governor's man Friday in matters political, and General Immel, both of whom supposedly want to stop Lieutenant Governor Ekern for private reasons.

In both reports can be found an undertone of respect, rather than enthusiasm, for Dammann's vote-getting ability. It is a theory amounting almost to a conviction in Progressive minds that Dammann can trim any Progressive in a primary except the LaFollette themselves. While the rumor-mongers are busy, however, this can be said with certainty: Dammann will not run for anything against the wishes of Phil.

HENRY'S PROSPECTS
The feeling is growing among neutral observers of the state political scene—and some realistic politicians—that unless the Democrats and Republicans produce some timber for the governorship, and that soon, Coalitionist Robert K. Henry may conceivably win both the Democratic and Republican nominations in September. Although the organization Democrats who revelled in ridiculing the coalitionists at their recent convention, and desperately strove to keep Henry's name from the delegates may not appreciate it, it is enlightening to recall what the men who now bitterly oppose his candidacy thought of him two years ago.

In the 1936 Democratic state platform, in the section which state Democracy devoted to "pointing with pride", is this sentence: We especially commend the Honorable Robert K. Henry, state treasurer for his most efficient and faithful services. Truly, we can say of him that he has been the most efficient state treasurer in the history of Wisconsin."

Politicians are fickle, Mr. Henry may be meditating today.

SHORT SHOTS
Grumbling about the Democratic ticket formed at Fond du Lac two weeks ago was not long in coming.

Most frequent complaints so far are that Duffy and Fox come from the same geographic area—Fond du Lac and Chilton are only 17 miles apart—and belong to the same church. In politics such things matter, or politicians think they do, which amounts to the same thing.

E. J. Samp, the latest entrant in the Republican senate scramble, has a remarkable achievement for a man who has taken politics as a career. He wears a Phi Beta Kappa key from the University of Wisconsin, and boasts a letter from the same school for football prowess two decades ago. Moreover, Samp has a lot of liberal ideas which may surprise some of his conservative party pals in the state G. O. P. when he begins his stumping tours.

The county poorhouse, which furnished the material for the celebrated cinema tear-jerker of years ago, may become the subject of a broad investigation by the new department of social adjustment when the governor decides to set it in operation. There is evidence in the hands of present state agencies concerned with social welfare institutions of shoddy administration, in different care, and outworn facilities, especially in the poor northern counties where general debilitation is common.

POT-POURRI
It is safe to hazard that the senate candidate who planned to base his campaign organization on local politicians who wanted to be postmasters some day was a little chagrined at the passage of the postmaster's civil service system.

The state highway commission has so many Celtic names on its payroll that one of its research divisions has been dubbed the "Irish survey" in capitol circles. Phil LaFollette adroitly evades comment on his reactions to the fulsome praise sent his way by Upton Sinclair, for half a century the chief propagandist for the Socialists in America, and world famous political radical and muckraker. While Sinclair joins Phil's new party, Wisconsin's own Socialist organization in Milwaukee remains openly critical.

The state administration is showing a manifest preference for newspapermen in making appointments to the new, top jobs in the state service. The Coalition committee is looking for a campaign manager. Orland S. Loomis, Progressive attorney general, has the support of one very prominent and influential conservative leader for reelection.

Historical note: fifty years ago today Gov. Jeremiah Rusk, failing

New Hanger Booms Airplane Business At Outagamie Port

11 Planes Using Facilities As Home Base; Class Of 50 Student Pilots

Construction of the new hanger at the Outagamie county airport has boomed the airplane business in Appleton materially during the last few months, according to Edwin West, airport manager.

Since the building was completed, there has been as high as 13 planes housed in it, about 10 more than usual before its completion. The number of student pilots has increased from 15 before construction of the hanger to 50 at present, West said. Eleven planes now are using the Outagamie port as a home base.

All but 15 of the current class have completed their solo flights and soon will be full-fledged fliers. Several of the remaining 15 are almost ready for their solo flights.

More people are becoming air-minded and are visiting the airport during the last four days when one of the largest land planes in the country was available for rides.

More than 1,000 persons paid for rides in planes at the airport Sunday alone, West stated. The big plane left Appleton yesterday.

A fence has been constructed blocking off the flying field from the rest of the property. An adequate parking area remains to take care of the crowds which visit the port on weekends.

Seven planes have been purchased recently by fliers from Appleton and vicinity. Some of the men who have bought planes are Charles Rowland, Harold Reiss, Lester Delgen, Clinton Schmidt, Joseph LeFave, Appleton; Frank Stecklin, Menasha; and Lawrence and William Doshner, Winchester.

Each is scheduled to play two solos. Orville J. Thompson will direct the band in a program featuring snappy marches and popular numbers.

No Compromise on Dinneen's Taxes

State Commission Turns Down Proposal for Settlement

Madison—(AP)—The state tax commission announced Monday it had refused to compromise with William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the public service commission on an $18,592 assessment for unreported income and will take steps to collect the taxes.

The assessment was made on a finding that Dinneen had failed to report $119,000 for taxation over a period of years dating from 1924.

John Thiel, director of the tax commission, disclosed that Dinneen's counsel had made an offer for a compromise but said the department would proceed with an audit of the former secretary's assets in an effort to collect the full assessment.

Proceedings were started against Dinneen after special state counsel had examined his bank accounts in their investigation of the collapse of the B. E. Buckman investment firm.

State attorneys traced part of the unexplained income to payments alleged to have been made to Dinneen by former officials of the H. M. Blyles company of Chicago.

Dinneen is facing criminal prosecution on a charge that he diverted confidential information from state files to officers of the Buckman company.

Alger, chairman of the finance committee, will present the report. Alger will also report on the audit of the school books made by the same firm.

Visitors Send Three Runs

First Inning

Kaukauna—The Mankosky Coals dropped a 6 to 5 decision to the Menasha Aces in a softball game Sunday morning here. Sherm Powers was on the mound for the Coals with Mankosky behind the bat. Neubauer pitched for the winners, and allowed nine hits, Gerhart being the only Kaukauna player to connect safely twice. The Menashans made 12 safeties off the pitching of Powers.

The visitors sent three runs across the plate in the first inning, and although the Coals rallied to come within a run of tying they failed at bat with men on the bases. It was the second loss to the Aces this year, the Coals having dropped a one run game at Menasha early in the season.

WISCONSIN REPUBLICAN NEEDS

The announcement by Julius P. Heil, well known Milwaukee industrialist, of his candidacy for governor on the Republican ticket suggests pointed questions and observations that should carry interest.

One of the major political parties in Wisconsin is the Progressive. It has been made such by the LaFollettes. The Republicans, if they expect to again gain ascendancy in this state would do well, in fact could do no better than to examine the LaFollette technique. And that statement implies both a fair and clear-eyed analysis of what has made LaFollette power.

The LaFollettes have devoted their lives to politics. They have ability. They work with unabated energy. They are students of our intricate laws and confusing governmental machinery. They know their state, its people, their ambitions, and above all they comprehend the practical nature of those people.

If the Republicans are to successfully cross swords with the Progressives in Wisconsin they must bring forth forceful, trained leaders, men devoted to the cause of politics and who are willing to volunteer for the duration of their useful years.

The demands of the day, the intricate and multiple nature of our governmental machinery, call for experts. The old notion that a good business man could drop the cares of his affairs and without further preparation take over gubernatorial duties is a gross error. He could bring to the office sound enough ideas of administration, but he would have little idea what he would have to administer. Most by study and preparation, but better by experience, could he become fitted to operate the levers of the now extensive machinery of state.

Were we to have a written examination to demonstrate the competency of men for the principal offices in the state, only the members of the judiciary, the legal profession generally where practice has kept them in touch, and such office holders and politicians with material experience, could ever secure a passing grade.

This competency is of vast importance. Without it a newly-elected governor is likely to impair his own success through misunderstanding, for every twist of the pilot's wheel in the great statehouse, though helpful to some, may be injurious to others, may, without the least evil purpose, head straight for the shoals.

The Republicans are sadly in need of good material, men who can gain both the respect and the confidence of the public. During the last few years, with an exception here and there like Mr. Kohler, no one has appeared with the requisite qualifications. Instead, men who should have become candidates for the assembly, because of their lack of experience or uncommensurate ability, have leaped for the seats of the mighty, mistaking egotism for character and rhetoric for ability.

It has been an excruciating experience for Republican voters who know what they want but cannot get it. They have not enjoyed seeing such leaders forced upon them, men who abandoned every known Republican principle and mixed up a sort of chili con carne for the public to be consisting of equal parts of Huey Long, Charlie Nathan, Karl Marx and Herbert Hoover. Against this concoction Wisconsin turned with a sure and sour stomach.

Leadership made the Progressives in Wisconsin today just as it made the Republicans from Lincoln to Taft. Without it a party is lost. With it a party cannot lose for long.

There is nothing magical in the word Republican, or in any other word. That party succeeded in state and nation for so long simply because, on the whole, it brought to the surface better ability, better material, more practical men and more practical principles than its opponents. When it lagged down to good-natured and delightful humbugs, and ability gave way to patronage as energy succumbed to easy going backslapping, it lost.

If it wants to gain success in Wisconsin, and, better still, hold that success and extend it, return must be made to first principles.

It needs big, square, brainy and dependable men. It cannot succeed without the respect and trust of the public. The mere abuse or belittlement of opponents will not do.

Undoubtedly, it has the men. But can it induce them to run for office, and then remain in the political ring?

THE BADGER CORRUPTION

The Grand Jury investigation and the subsequent trials at Waukesha have served a good purpose in establishing by the actual evidence of exposure just what occurs when commercialized gambling takes over a county.

The first conclusion from the evidence is that the gambling syndicate was prepared and willing to bribe anyone, and the size of the bribes it offered makes the situation all the more disturbing because otherwise good men were greatly tempted and, to their eternal disgrace some of them succumbed.

Thus at Waukesha the district attorney was offered $1,000 a month to look the other way and busy himself elsewhere. One of the men who had been sheriff was offered the lump sum of $10,000 for his friendship during his term of office. A newspaper reporter was offered $1000 "to play down" public discussion of the prevalence of slot machines. The amount paid or offered town officers was not disclosed, but evidence in other instances has shown the disposition of gambling interests to pay "meddlesome" town officers a rake-off on the machines in their towns.

Thus the little slot machine when directed on a commercialized scale spreads its deadly poison throughout the entire fabric of town and county government, polluting and destroying as it goes. And the worst feature, and the most dangerous, as the Post-Crescent has often emphasized, is not the gambling but the gambling that becomes professional, is not therefore the mere act of someone sticking a nickel in a slot curious to know what will happen, but the combined, planned and concentrated efforts and purposes of a syndicate to capitalize on acts that, individually, are innocent or merely frivolous.

Another thing that the Waukesha case makes evident is that this extensive sort of crime and corruption cannot be carried on long without arousing a strong public revulsion and likewise a flood of evidence against the guilty, such astonishing evidence that those charged with crime, for the most part, lacked the boldness to even deny it.

But the number and amount of bribes, and the extensive nature of the corruption are not surprising when the apparent profits are considered.

Most syndicates, it was claimed, will not put out a machine unless it is good for a minimum profit of $60 a month. With 600 machines in a county, not a great number for a populous county, the minimum gross profit is thus $432,000 per annum. Turning half of this to the premises leaves the syndicate a splendid fortune to protect even after generous allowance for all ordinary expenses for repair and upkeep.

The figures seem large but they are based upon reality. Since they are minimum figures the imagination is not running wild that adds substantially to them.

They should show the people of Wisconsin that something both drastic and sensible must be done about this gambling business, something much more than merely writing or enforcing laws with a witch burning spirit. And we are glad to note men like Al Smith, and intelligent liberal-journalists like the New York World Telegram endeavoring to rewrite and make sensible gambling laws so that frivolity may be maintained by those who crave it, but syndicates prevented from using it as a means in corruption of government.

INSULL—A STUDY IN POWER

Mr. Insull for a period of forty years was one of the most successful of American business men.

And then, in a surge of high confidence, he abandoned business principles relating to caution and staked his fortune, which was great, and his name, which was greater, on an effort to control and rule an extensive utility empire. And he lost.

Since he has been acquitted of felonious misconduct, and since he is dead, certain features of his operations may be dismissed and stress put upon the stubborn fact that he fell because such men must fall for the safety of all. And to show how impossible for such a man with such an ambition to continue to stand upright, let the wildest charges of misconduct against him be assumed to be true. And still his empire had to collapse.

If we all had known Mr. Insull personally, we probably would have concluded that he lost because he tried for too much, and that everyone from Lucifer on has travelled the same course when pushed and prodded and carried by cold and heartless ambition.

When Mr. Insull about 18 years ago started on a career in quest of mere power, he was probably worth fifty millions or more and lord of the second city in the western world and most of its suburbs. But his ambition hungered night and day. His mistake was one of perspective, and he lost his fortune because in extending his power he borrowed so extensively that his own equity became too thin for safety and vanished entirely in the economic storm.

He was different from most men because he was able, but that difference did not ruin him. He lost control of his affairs to his ambition and one who tosses the reins to that ugly gargoyle is sure to crash.

Mr. Insull's ruin is a mixed testimonial to America and to Heaven. This country cannot put up with concentration of power. Heaven has never permitted all the reins to run to one pair of hands for long.

Dale Harrison's In Old New York

New York — Gone are the "we" boys. They vanished, grudgingly, when vaudeville died. How they got along since, Heaven only knows. If vaudeville should come back, as it gives strong promise of doing, the "we" boys will spring up. I have no doubt, once more; and the familiar chorus of "Gimme!" will swell anew along Broadway.

The "we" boys were the actors and actresses who played occasional dates on the road and spent the rest of their time hanging around the stage door of the old Palace Theatre, most famous of American vaudeville houses.

Saturday afternoons you could find scores of them. Saturday afternoon was payday at the Palace. That was why the "we" boys were always there. It was the opportune time to make a touch.

A headliner, emerging from the stage door, was sure to run into a nest of them. "Remember us?" they would say. "We played on the same bill with you in Kalamazoo last season. I'm the fellow who did songs, dances and nifty sayings. Remember? We played the same bill."

That's how they got the name of "we" boys. They hung around the Palace stage door, hoping to get some folding money from their more successful brothers—from the headliners "we played on the same bill with in Kalamazoo."

Vaudeville actors were notoriously improvident and good hearted, but the "we" boys became a great nuisance. Actors at the Palace schemed ways to escape the line of "gimme" fellows. They would duck out at other doors, only to find that every exit was monitored by someone who came rushing up to shake hands, announcing: "We played with you last year in—"

Show business is like that.

Funny thing about the vaudeville revival, it hasn't yet dug up the old juggling, acrobatic or animal acts that wowed us in the old days of the Orpheum circuit. The entertainment to date has been top heavy with dancers, singers and comedians.

In another month or two, several more vaudeville houses will open in New York, playing continuous performances. The nearest thing to the old Palace—which was "two-a-day" vaudeville—is Billy Rose's Casa Manana, and there is a sharp difference in the manner of presentation.

The Palace had a top price of eight-five cents, if I remember my arithmetic correctly. This got you a reserved seat in the orchestra and entitled you to an evening of entertainment lasting as long as you could find in other theatres with their $3 and $4 seats. (Ziegfeld once got $27 per ticket for an opening performance of one of his "Follies," but he never tried that again. Even the bottom day boys frowned upon such boxoffice audacity.)

The price scale at the Casa Manana, on the other hand, scales from $1.10 up to $2.50 minimum for those who wish to dine as well as watch the show. This means, of course, that those who got choice seats for their vaudeville in the old days can't even get into Casa Manana vaudeville without adding another two-bits to their cost.

When vaudeville really gets swinging into stride, the old galleries will have a chance again—25 cents in peanut heaven, remember? 15 cents for matinees—and then we can get some idea as to just how widespread the demand for vaudeville's revival is. Until the galery god has had a chance to express himself, this form of entertainment is just on trial.

Incidentally, Billy Rose has lately announced he will put on a show at the World's Fair next year that will out-gigantic anything you ever saw. He says there will be one thousand actors in it. Mr. Rose seems to have gone conservative on us. Only one thousand actors! Sounds like practically nothing more than a peep-show. (Copyright, 1938)

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Tuesday, July 17, 1928

Shooting superb golf, Frank Walsh of Appleton went into a tie with Francis Gallett, Milwaukee, defending champion, at the end of the third round of the state open golf tournament Tuesday. Each had a total of 218 at the end of 54 holes.

First steps toward organizing a permanent safety council in this district, including the Fox river valley and the Lake Shore division, were taken at a meeting of a group of men representing valley communities at the Conway hotel the previous day.

Appleton's new municipal golf course would not be opened until the middle of August, it was decided at a meeting of the park board and Ed Harwood.

Acting on the suggestion of Congressman J. D. Beck of Viroqua, that they be the leaders in a movement to organize all municipally owned electric light plants in the state, Mayor W. C. Sullivan and Jo. O. Posson, manager of the Kaukauna Electric department, were making plans for a statewide meeting at Kaukauna late in August or early in September.

25 YEARS AGO
Tuesday, July 27, 1913

Governor McGovern this morning signed the Wolf reservoir bill. His act meant much to the Fox river valley as it eventually meant the control of the flow of water, it was stated.

Local members of the Appleton Menomonee and their wives, who attended the Eastern and Northern district Saengerfest at Sheboygan from Friday to Monday, returned home the previous afternoon. Otto Schafer of Appleton was elected vice president of the East Wisconsin district.

Dr. Maud Pratt that day purchased Dr. Jens' interest in the maternity hospital recently established on Prospect street.

All members of the Appleton Motorcycle club were to go to the Driving park that night armed with hoes and rakes to clean off the weeds and fix up the track for the Sunday races.

A Verse for Today
By Anne Campbell

WHEN THE WIND BLOWS NORTH
When the wind blows north,
I can hear the boats
Pour a message forth
From their deep harsh throats.

In my bed I lie,
And I want to go
Where the smoke floats high
And the whistles blow.

But a house that clings
To the solid ground
Has a voice that sings
And a heart that's sound.

On a windy night,
In the summer weather,
There can be no flight
Unless together.

You and I go forth,
Running silently,
When the wind blows north,
To the calling sea.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — The voice of the head of the Democratic party sounds like the voice of the President of the United States.

It has the same agreeable comeliness, even the Mr. Roosevelt said that he would not talk as president in the primaries but as head of the Democratic party, he would fight for his loyal senators.

Never does Mr. Roosevelt seem so happy as when he can cut loose without restraint as president in the primaries but as head of the Democratic party, he would fight for his loyal senators.

he did at the Latonia race track at Covington, Ky., in his effort to rescue Senator Barkley from the toils of Governor Chandler. Not since 1936 has the Roosevelt zest for political battle been so obvious.

The president is at his speaking peak when he has a crowd before him pitched to politics and there is no need to trim sail. The president knows that, his "fighting speeches" always are before audiences shaped to his liking. When he is compelled to hold himself in because of nettlesome political conditions, his enthusiasm is dampened.

It's the "Bounce"

Thus, in the entangling political situation in Ohio and Oklahoma, where the president had to pull rein, his commendation of the New Deal senators was so restrained that by comparison with the speeches in Kentucky they sounded like damning with faint praise.

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, the president's sea-going physician, has a word for the president's zest. He says when the president is healthy, rested and doing something he likes he has "bounce," a certain mental resilience and responsiveness which is absent when he is exhausted. He had it at Covington.

Some repercussions to the president's participation in state primaries were immediate. The president made Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky unhappy with his jibes. He twitted the governor about his boasted balancing of the budget, telling his chitchatting and laughing audience that Chandler came often to Washington and ably aided himself by never coming away empty-handed.

But Chandler's supporters responded in their own way. Kentucky long has had a tradition against interfering with primaries. Where Barkley's posters said "Roosevelt wants Barkley," Chandler posters retorted: "Kentucky wants Chandler."

That Roosevelt Luck

That sharply pointed up the arguments made by critics of the president's primary invasion, that primary elections are strictly a state affair. In pre-purge days that was emphasized by another head of the Democratic party, Postmaster General Farley.

As the president left for his combination vacation and political "house," "Roosevelt luck" gave him a send-off. The stock market that had sagged sickeningly all spring took an upward spurt and continued to climb.

Things like that happen to president Roosevelt. His itinerary calls for a stop at Coco Solos Islands, reputed resting place of buried pirate treasure. Roosevelt probably will find it.

Cracks Down On Rich Girls

BY LYDIA GRAY SILAW

New York—William McChesney Martin, Jr., the 31-year-old president of the New York Stock Exchange, sat down in his guarded air-conditioned office, hunched his knees against the desk, and confessed to a weakness for the simple life.

"I haven't any expensive habits," he said. (He neither smokes nor drinks; doesn't keep a car in New York.) I like to go to the theater, but I go by myself and usually sit in the balcony. I used to play tennis three or four times a week at Forest Hills. Lately I've been too busy."

Martin, the first paid president of the Exchange, gets $48,000 a year. A fiend for work, he doesn't act like a go-getter. He moves slowly, speaks slowly, smiles often—but slowly. His clothes are common place.

A "Regretful" Bachelor

Social life doesn't interest him but he's being asked around quite a bit, now that he's in the limelight. Says he's a "regretful" bachelor. Doesn't think regretful.

He did say, "I'd like to travel every day of my life."

At that, he's done a pretty good job of touring the United States—has been in every state but Florida. Last March he went on a Mediterranean cruise. He had been putting in 20-hour work days helping draft the Exchange's new constitution, he said, so after it was over, he went aboard ship and spent the first three days sleeping.

Kept to Himself

"I didn't speak to anybody for seven days," he reflected. "I ate at a table by myself. I was pretty sick of talking to people by then. One night toward the end of the cruise, I asked a girl to dance, then could n't get away until 1:30. I was completely worn down."

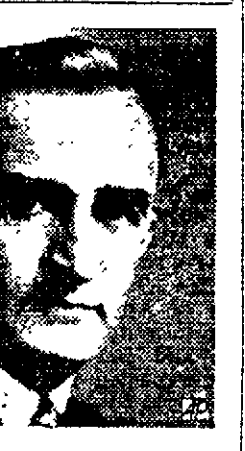

It was his second trip abroad. In 1927, after his junior year at Yale, he went on a European tour.

Mr. Martin has never come to consider New York home, though he's been here seven years now—ever since he purchased a membership in the Stock Exchange. He lives at the Yale Club, because he likes to think he's here only temporarily. St. Louis is home, but he doesn't get out there more than once a month.

The son of well-to-do parents—his father is president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis—Mr. Martin says he gives most of

Your Birthday

"CANCER"

If July 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. until noon; from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m.; from 7 to 9 p. m., and from 11 p. m. until midnight.

A lack of consideration for people's time may prove to be this day's most upsetting influence. Fight, may be the cause of ill-tempered outbursts, so be careful not to scare anyone. A lack of charitable understanding and liberal judging of the weaknesses of mankind will be due to the selfish attitude of solitaneous people. Do your part to counteract the foregoing condition and you may find yourself amply rewarded for your efforts. Lady Luck is apt to pay you an unexpected visit this day, and you might find yourself richer in worldly good. Uncalled-for rudeness will be the principal cause of ill will and intense dislikes. Be conservative in your business methods, as well as in his money away. Sometimes the very rich disturb Mr. Martin.

Rich Girls Disturb Him

"Barbara Hutton," he says, "has done more to destroy American capitalism than any other individual."

That's pretty heated for an individual as gentle as Mr. Martin. He gets cross, too, about rich girls who take jobs just so they can say they're earning money.

Mr. Martin won't be labeled a liberal. Says he's an independent. He gets annoyed with people who accuse him of straddling the fence. Though he tries to be unemotional in his analysis of economic trends, he says that doesn't prevent him from having convictions of his own.

The government, he says, must lay down the broad general policies by which the Exchange is to function, but the Exchange should do its own policing job, and see that those policies are carried out.

Only half the age of most of the past leaders of the Exchange, Martin is in office "as long as the board wants me."

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

POPULAR MISCONCEPTIONS OF PHYSICAL FITNESS

The one young man among a group of two dozen or more I had to reject for physical deficiency had the largest chest expansion of the lot, about five inches, yet he was in the first stage of pulmonary tuberculosis. Another young man asked me whether his chest expansion, six inches, will shorten his life or anything like that. Apparently the young man was proud of his freak. Of course it has nothing to do with health, physical fitness, immunity or longevity. It would be more significant to know how long the young man can hold his breath. His chest expansion is two or three times greater than that of the ordinary healthy young man or even a well trained athlete. I'd like to wager he can't hold his breath half again as long as the average normal man can.

A healthy person, sitting at rest, without preparation, should be able to take a moderately full breath and hold it without difficulty for forty seconds. If the breaking point is much shorter than 40 seconds, the individual needs the attention of a physician. With preparation, that is, by first taking a dozen moderately deeper breaths but without straining at all, a healthy person should be able to hold his or her breath from 1 1/2 to 2 minutes. One who first takes half a dozen or more full breaths of pure oxygen can hold his breath immediately afterward for several minutes. Some students breathe pure oxygen for a few minutes and then hold their breath over 13 minutes.

The breath-holding time is a better test of physical fitness or condition than is the chest expansion or even the measurement of vital capacity. Vital capacity is the amount of air one can breathe out after the deepest possible inspiration, as measured by the spirometer, a form of gasometer adapted for the purpose. The average vital capacity of men is a little less than a gallon, and that of women is half a pint less than that of men. The reason why breath-holding is the best index of fitness or condition is because it depends on the efficiency of the internal respiration, that is, the capacity of the blood to carry oxygen, the capacity of the circulation to carry the blood, and the capacity of the cells of the body to use the oxygen and exchange their load of carbon dioxide for it. In other words breath-holding is a gauge of metabolism.

Freak physical culture systems or methods involving exercises of effort, such as lifting heavy weights, overdevelop the skeletal muscles, but such inveterate muscles become parasites on vitality which is sapped for their nourishment. The ill-advised course of training fails to develop constitutional vigor at the same time, fails to train the heart and the circulation to cope with increased demands for oxygen and for fuel, invites early physical breakdown and prematurely senility or death.

Sound physical training, or perhaps we should say physical education, develops constitutional vigor, promotes physical efficiency and longevity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS Under the Sky

Sons 11 and 13 slept last summer on open porch with roof over them. This summer they want to sleep in cots on lawn with sky as roof. Blankets almost drenched with heavy dew fall nights here. Will sleeping in the open harm them? (Mrs. M. C. J.)

Answer — No. If they enjoy it sleeping in the open is fine for them.

Old Woman

Noticed inquiry in your column "Is woman of forty too old to have her first baby?" As a woman of 39 who has just had her first I say "No." No prettier, more intelligent or healthier baby can be found than mine. I myself am in far better health than I have known in years. If all women of forty could see me and my baby all hesitancy and doubt on that score would be removed. (D. F. E.)

Answer—That's the trouble. Instead of seeing normal folk like you and your baby they see and hear Mrs. Sumsey, Sarreygamp and Een Told.

Lemons

Answer—If you like lemon juice, lemon or lemonade, it is healthful to take as much as you like daily. Of course it will not reduce any more than taking other fruit or fruit juice reduces. Don't be so credulous. Send ten cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Design for Dwindling." If you wish to reduce in the physiological, healthful way.

The Lions Club of Appleton Presents the Northwest Territory Celebration
 and the Federal Pageant That Has Thrilled Hundreds of Thousands

"FREEDOM ON THE MARCH"

ERB PARK, APPLETON---THURSDAY, JULY 21

THE arrival in Appleton next Thursday of the Northwest Territory Caravan will signal the opening of a commemorative program unlike any previous historical celebration in the Fox River Valley. This community will take full advantage of the dramatic set-up arranged and financed by the federal and state governments for a fitting observance of one of the most momentous events in pioneering history.

In the parade on Thursday, July 21, and, more particularly, in the stirring program to be presented at Erb Park, you will see history re-created. While the 1938 pioneer caravan is by no means the entire Northwest Territory Celebration, it is the vivid colorful means of calling the attention of America to the momentous history involved. Wisconsin is one of the states created from the original Northwest Territory, and the pageant honors the spirit of the pioneers who opened up the tremendous resources of this state.

There is no charge in connection with the celebration. Public-minded civic organizations and governmental groups bring it to you without charge.

It will start at 11 A. M. at State St. and will move east on College Ave. to Drew St.

PAGEANT

A thrilling pageant, free to the public, will be staged by a cast of 36 persons in the caravan troupe that has been en route over the pioneer trail from Ipswich, Mass., since last December. It will depict eight vital episodes leading to enactment of the famous Northwest Ordinance by Congress in 1787.

Dr. Kolb Named Head of County Republican Club

Succeeds Elmer R. Honkamp, Who Resigned Because of District Duties

Dr. C. L. Kolb, 523 S. Mueller street, was named chairman of the Outagamie County Republican club at a meeting last night at the courthouse. He succeeds Elmer R. Honkamp, who last week resigned because of his duties as new district Republican chairman.

Campaign plans were discussed and C. C. Nelson, mentioned currently as a likely candidate to oppose Congressman George Schneider for that office was asked to make a statement. Nelson said that if Joshua Johns, Kewaunee, was to enter the race that he would not run. He added that he was informed Johns was to announce his candidacy today. Nelson also expressed his opposition to an open primary.

Robert K. Henry, coalition candidate for governor, will speak at a picnic of the Catholic church on Tuesday Sunday, it was announced at the meeting. HOLLYWOOD LIGHTS CAMERA ACTION! HAPPENINGS

New York—This, folks, is my day of atonement and embarrassment. Here I've come to New York to check up on a lot of things. My two weeks have slid by like a greased pig. And what's this on my desk, leering at me, but a pile of scrambled letters marked "Unfinished Business!"

Find out why the movies haven't blossomed yet. Write a piece on Jack Holt, and let the world know that Jack — more than 20 years a movie star, and no longer so hot in Hollywood — is the biggest star on Broadway. Tell Jack, if he doesn't know it, that his name goes up in monstrous twinklers every time he sends a picture to the old main stem. Tell the Holt fans everywhere how their clamor kept Columbia from "dropping" him when that studio "tried to" wash him up.

British Medical Profession Hails Doctor's Acquittal

London—(AP)—The British medical profession believed it had won a notable victory in the acquittal today of Dr. William Aleck Bourne, physician, obstetrician, who performed an illegal operation to prevent a 15-year-old girl, victim of an assault, from becoming a mother.

The jury, which included two women, took 45 minutes to reach a verdict after Justice MacNaughten, summing up, said Dr. Bourne had performed "an act of charity without fee."

Cheers from the crowd, including leaders of the British medical profession and socialists, greeted the verdict.

Dr. Bourne had insisted on being prosecuted in order to test Britain's rarely invoked statute against operations to prevent motherhood.

Leaders in the medical profession, including Baron Horder, physician-in-ordinary to the king, went to the defense of Dr. Bourne in the case, which was made a test to determine whether discretion should be allowed surgeons under the statute.

The main question in the trial was whether operations could be performed only to save a prospective mother's life or also for the sake of her health and future.

SUPERVISOR INSPECTS JOISTS IN OLD HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

Here is A. James Lytle, Jr., who is supervising remodeling work at Carrie Morgan school for the board of education, inspecting a section of the basement where a ramp will be constructed for orthopedic school pupils. Some of the joists in the building, Lytle said, are 14 inches wide and up to 30 feet long and are in excellent shape although they were put in the building in 1904. The joists being inspected by Lytle in the picture will be replaced by modern steel beams to support the ramp, which will enter the building at the rear, come through a part of the gymnasium and auditorium to meet the main floor corridor. Draft Final Report Of Investigation in Brown County Highways

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison, Wis.—The final report of the state highway commission's inquiry into the affairs of the Brown county highway department, postponed for more than a month for one reason or another, will be ready for submission to Governor LaFollette Wednesday evening, Thomas Davlin, chairman of the state highway department, said Monday.

The commission several months ago retained the state auditing division to look into the practices of the Brown county highway office, after charges of irregularities were filed at the governor's office. The commission's action was at the direction of Governor LaFollette.

The auditing division's report in abstract form was presented to the governor three weeks ago. It was not made public, however, because the exhibits and accounting schedules to support the conclusions in the report text were not yet completed, Davlin explained. The highway chairman told: "is working on his own summary of the findings of the Brown county inquiry, which, together with the auditors' report, will be sent to the Brown county district attorney's office, Governor LaFollette recently announced.

Workmen Rush to Finish Remodeling Of Morgan School

Project Between 25 and 30 Per Cent Completed, Supervisor Says

Carrie Morgan school is a bee hive of activity as workmen rush to complete its remodeling before the opening of school in September. The work is between 25 and 30 per cent completed, according to A. James Lytle, Jr., who is supervising the remodeling for the school board.

The building, Lytle said, is in excellent condition and lends itself well to remodeling work. An inspection of the foundation and interior walls revealed no structural defect of any kind. There are 12-inch brick walls in the interior and the foundation stone work is excellent, Lytle said.

Workmen now are cutting a ramp from the rear of the building through the gymnasium and auditorium and to the main floor corridor. The ramp will be used by orthopedic school pupils who will attend classes in the building. An elevator for children who cannot use the ramp also is being built.

Most of the preliminary work has been finished and construction of walls forming new rooms has been started. Lead pipe which formed the old water system has been removed and is being replaced with new piping. Some parts of the heating system and ventilation system will be rerouted and improved.

New Ceilings
New ceilings will be installed in the corridors as well as in many of the rooms being remodeled. The floors in the administration section will be of asphalt tile. Other floors will be covered with linoleum. The wiring system also is being reconditioned.

The present inscriptions over the entrances will be changed from "Appleton High School" to "Carrie Morgan School" in honor of Miss Carrie E. Morgan, who resigned this spring as secretary of the board of education after 44 years of service.

The basement of the building will remain as it is and will be used as a general shop for the school system. Repairs of all types will be made in that part of the building by janitors under the direction of William Eggert, superintendent of janitors. No classrooms will be in the basement.

The orthopedic school will take up the west half of the main floor including a physiotherapy room, a hydrotherapy room, rest rooms for boys and girls and lavatories in that end of the building.

The old high school vault on the first floor has been removed and a

Appleton Clergymen Participating in Conference at Bonduel

Lutheran pastors of churches belonging to the Wisconsin synod are attending a Fox river valley conference today and Wednesday at Bonduel. Those present from Appleton are the Rev. F. M. Brandt, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran church; the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer, pastor of Mt. Olive Lutheran church; and the Rev. Philip Froehke, pastor of St. Matthew Lutheran church. Pastor and Mrs. Froehke are taking a short vacation this week which will take them to Poyssippi and Milwaukee also.

A number of women of First Baptist church are planning to attend a house party for Baptist women at Beaver Dam Wednesday. The house party will be in progress Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, but the local group will attend but one day. The Piney school colored quartet will appear Thursday night at the Baptist church, singing a program which will include Negro spirituals. Last Sunday morning the Rev. R. H. Spangler, pastor, preached on the theme, "When Religion Interferes with Business."

The Rev. J. E. Schlagenhauf, district superintendent of Appleton district of the Methodist church, is having a busy week, for he will conduct quarterly conferences at a number of churches this week. Last night he was at Brothertown and this evening he will be at Stockbridge, Wednesday night at Clintonville and Friday at Parkville. Next Sunday he will preach and conduct a conference at Sawyer.

Preaches At Festival

The Rev. John W. Wilson, pastor-at-large for Congregational churches in Wisconsin, preached at two services Sunday at a mission festival at Galesburg.

St. Mary congregation will experience a change of pastors this week when the Rev. James E. Meagher, pastor for the last eight years, goes to Grand Bay to take over his duties as pastor of St. Patrick church, and the Rev. William Grace comes here from Sacred Heart church at Manitowoc. The change becomes effective Thursday, but both priests will be at their new charges Wednesday afternoon.

The Gift of Talent was the German sermon theme Sunday at St. John Evangelical and Reformed church. At the English service the Rev. A. Cuddeback, pastor spoke on "Her Adventure."

Madison Pastor Speaks

Union services for First Congregational and Memorial Presbyterian churches Sunday at the latter church were addressed by the Rev. C. D. Yokum, Madison, whose subject was "I Am the Living Bread." At First Methodist church Dr. Thomas S. Epler, professor of Bible and religion at Lawrence college, preached the sermon, while at Zion Lutheran church the Rev. Theodore Marth, pastor, spoke on "Jesus and the Centurion Servant." The Rev. Leo Oberleiter, Oshkosh, was guest preacher at First English Lutheran church.

The following passage was read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The way is straight and narrow, which leads to the understanding that God is the only life. It is a warfare with the flesh, in which we must conquer sin, sickness, and death either here or hereafter—certainly before we can reach the goal of spirit or life in God."

Booster Club Has Its Annual Picnic

At Lake Winnebago

Kimberly — A lively match by Vanden Boogaard's German band started off the parade Sunday morning which took about a hundred members of the Booster club to Sommerhalder's resort, near Lake Winnebago, for their fifth annual outing.

Fred Paulus, attired in overalls and a 10-gallon straw hat, led the parade with his car which was decorated with balloons of assorted colors, followed by the band and members in their cars.

At the lake two softball games were played with each side having enough players for a small army. Fly balls were dead shots for outs every time because half a dozen fielders were always waiting.

In the morning's tilt Frank Verlugen's Giants won over Frank Courchane's Cubs, 12 to 9. In the afternoon game Gordon Welch's Red Sox were defeated by Courchane's Cubs, 14 to 10. High honors for the day in softball went to Adrian Gerrits who hit a single, triple, double and a homer in four trips to the plate.

In the classic race first place went to Butch Thoin; second, Richard Lamers; and third to Gene Frascette. Other entries were Anton Van Thul, Fred Paulus, Jess Wydeven and M. H. Versteen.

Butch Thoin's Trojans won the tug-of-war over Frank Courchane's Noble Warriors in two contests. The band played a concert during the day while other club members were seated under shade trees to play various card games. Dinner and supper was served on the grounds.

Rotary Members Make

FLIES ANCIENT PLANE OVER OCEAN

Douglas P. Corrigan, 31, took off from New York on a flight to "California" and the next heard from him was at Baldonnel, Ireland, where he landed. He flew an ancient cabin monoplane with extra gas tanks that cut off his forward view. Corrigan is shown here cranking the single motor of his 1929 plane.

$166,000 Aerial Map of Wisconsin Will Show All Features on State's Land Face

Madison — (U) — By the end of this year a $166,000 photograph of the state of Wisconsin will be completed.

Under direction of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, photographing planes have been covering the state taking pictures every 20 seconds.

When the picture-map is finished, it will show every feature on the land face of the state — including farm buildings, railroads, streams, forests, lakes, fields, highways and gullies.

The Wisconsin AAA, like all states in the country, will use the maps for a cheaper, more suitable method of determining payments in its crop production control program.

The maps also will be used by the highway commission for relocating and plotting new highways. The commission gave $24,000 for photoing the Northern section of the state. Among other agencies which will make use of the prints are the state planning board, the tax commission, the federal soil conservation administration and the U. S. Geological survey.

First in Midwest

The Badger state will be the first in the Northwestern part to complete its map, and one of the first in the United States. Twenty-six counties have already been "snapped," and contracts have been let for all of the central and northern sections.

E. L. Taylor, of Madison, assistant supervising engineer, is in charge of the photo staff.

There are only 3 days of the year in which photo's can be taken, because of the perfect weather conditions needed.

The planes traverse the county snapping pictures at intervals of 20 seconds, cruising at 145 miles an hour. They fly down the length of on the sentimental, the flight so caught imagination that the policy was to forgive and not forget, so far as a welcome is concerned.

Already they're dusting off the "celebrity trail" traveled only last week by Howard Hughes and Company.

Mulligan, torn between the pride of the "Old Sod" and duty, asserted between chuckles that something would have to be done.

His first concern was to prevent "incorrigible Corrigan" from jumping into his ship and flying home.

Corrigan promised interviewers in Ireland he would not attempt to backtrack his uncharted trail across the Atlantic, a route carefully traversed six previous times by aviators flying solo and mainly with elaborate instruments as aids—certainly in planes prettier than Corrigan's obsolete Curtiss Robin, 1929 model.

The mild burst of publicity that accompanied Corrigan's 28-hour non-stop flight from Long Beach, Calif., to New York July 9, a mere smattering of space on the eve of Howard Hughes takeoff "round the world, brought several "feeder" offers to the flier.

Offers Piling Up

Now that he has completely captured the front pages, concrete offers of profit are piling up.

A New Jersey amusement park announced a $25,000 offer if Corrigan would christen his plane with its name.

An airline previously signed him to a contract to fly the old "Corrigan clipper" over its route, making all stops, if he completed his round trip by flying back to Long Beach nonstop—as he announced he was doing when he took off for Ireland.

Upon hearing that difficulties might arise from Corrigan's violation of the rules, Irish organizations in New York immediately offered any help he might need—legal or otherwise—in the way of defense.

Plea Must Fail

Although Corrigan steadfastly assured the pop-eyed Irish populace that he thought all the time he was flying to California, that his compass worked backwards or something, he can hardly plead innocent when brought to the bar of the federal bureau controlling aircraft.

He applied once before for permission to fly to Ireland and was refused. Friends at Roosevelt field disclosed that promptly thereafter he spent some time in New England vainly searching for an obscure field for a quiet takeoff overseas last summer.

Honors already are heaping upon the unpredictable non-stopper, not the least of which is a membership in the Liars' club of Burlington, Wis., on the basis of his straight-faced, persistent assertions he thought he was flying toward California.

New 7-Cent Stamp Will Go on Sale Next Month

A 7-cent stamp bearing the likeness of Andrew Jackson will be the next denomination to be issued by the United States postal department in the new regular series, Postmaster Stephen Balliet said today.

The stamp will be printed in sepia and issued in sheets of 100. It will be first placed on sale at Washington, D. C., Aug. 4 and at other post offices, including Appleton, as soon after that date as distribution can be made.

after, new photos must be made because of the change of fields and fencing. Another reason for the value of the picture-map is that soil erosion in gullies and streams is clearly shown.

Author Of The Week

AUDREY LUCAS probably deserves some sort of gilt star for having accomplished one of the most difficult tasks in literature. In "Old Motley" she has made the "artistic temperament" of her actor hero credible; she also has brought to life the theater of a century ago, and some of the people who animated it. This is a good deal, even for the daughter of E. V. Lucas.

A son was born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Vianne, route 4, Appleton.

A daughter was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. Chris Wildenberg, Canal street.

Announcement was made at St. John church Sunday of the coming marriage of Joseph Helf, son of Mrs. Nicholas Helf of this village, and Miss Ordea Rabideau of Kaukauna.

Ireland Will Not Take Action to Punish Corrigan and that he was approaching the Dublin government in an effort to get it released.

Corrigan spent the morning walking around the grounds of the United States legation, where he is under technical detention because of his arrival yesterday without official papers. He is the guest of the minister, John Cudahy.

Talks to Crowd

He put in much time chatting with the crowd which gathered long before he got up and discussing his plans with the minister.

He acknowledged "folks here still are tremendously excited about my trip, but after all it wasn't much. They've been very kind to me in not having me summoned for landing without a air-worthiness certificate."

The 31-year-old Californian who flew an aged plane the "wrong way," crossed the Atlantic, set all England and Ireland talking and was proclaimed on two continents as a foolhardy hero, slept late in the guest bed of the legation. He wore pajamas borrowed from Cudahy.

"I want a nice long rest," he told Cudahy last night. "Don't wake me for a long time. I'll sleep through breakfast."

What's in a Name?

He had the matter of legality of his landing to settle with Irish officials, but men with names like Corrigan and Cudahy are not likely to have trouble here setting over a technical difficulty when it concerns a flight like Corrigan's to Dublin.

Has No Passport

The "crate" that took him 3,150 miles from New York to Dublin's Baldonnel airdrome between 3:17 a. m. (C. S. T.) Sunday and 7:30 a. m. (C. S. T.) Monday was locked up at Baldonnel.

Under the air navigation act, American fliers are permitted to land in Eire on unscheduled flights if their passports are in order. Corrigan did not bring a passport. Such a document is not needed to fly from New York to California, as Corrigan insisted he thought he was doing until he reached Irish shores.

Newspapers burst into place. The Irish News said, "Corrigan's feat without wireless, weather reports, maps or adequate instruments leaves us almost speechless with amazement."

"When the initial shock is over, the hand of everyone will be lifted to salute this intrepid adventurer with an Irish name."

New London '9' Defeats Rapids

Prahl Hurls 2-Hit Ball In Final Game of Legion Series

NEW LONDON—With 2-hit ball, Junior Prahl pitched his teammates to a 3 to 2 decision over Wisconsin Rapids at Stevens Point yesterday afternoon to give the New London American Legion Juniors the district championship. It was the last of a 3-game series.

On Thursday the New London boys will travel more than 150 miles to Florence, Wis., on the state's north boundary line, to compete for the regional title. The Florence team will return here for the second game Saturday. The local squad will leave here about 7:30 Thursday morning.

Junior Prahl won his ninth ball game in the last of the ninth inning when he pitched a hard, clean single that tallied Flanagan from second base. Flanagan had singled as first man up. Hertz struck out. Wilson pinch hit for Bellie and singled. Herres popped out and then Prahl hit to end the game.

Hertz counted the second run with a lone home run hit in the fourth. He scored the first in the second inning when he singled, stole second, advanced on Bellie's out and crossed the rubber when Hertz singled. Flanagan got a double in the sixth with one down but the next two batters failed to chase him home.

The Juniors gave Prahl good support except for two errors in the fifth that gave the Rapids squad two runs.

The New London hurler fanned eight and walked four while the opposing pitcher whiffed five and passed two.

Armstrong Intimates Ambers Has Passed His Boxing Peak

BY DREW MIDDLETON

New York—(AP)—Everytime you look up, Henry Armstrong is getting ready to knock some fellow's head off. This time it is Lou Ambers and the Los Angeles Negro goes so far as to predict he'll beat out the king of lightweights.

"You boob! You're making his first appearance here, since he battered Barney Ross into a bleeding, helpless pulp and added the welterweight championship to his featherweight crown. Henry starts training Wednesday.

"I saw him fight this Jimmy Vaughn out in Los Angeles," said Henry, "and I think maybe he's gone back. He didn't lick Vaughn until Vaughn got tired and Jimmy hit him a couple of licks that really rocked him.

"You're different than he was," continued the hammer. "Remember him against Montez that time indoors. Pedro hit him with

Lewis Is 'Forgotten Man' As Bout With Galento Nears

LEIPERVILLE, PA.—(AP)—"The forgotten man"—that's what they're calling John Henry Lewis these days.

The light heavyweight champion is matched for a 15-round non-title bout with beer drinking, "Two-Ton" Tony Galento at Philadelphia's municipal stadium a week from tonight. Tony has been getting most of the headlines.

"So, I'm the forgotten man," mused Lewis at his training camp here. "That's all right by me. I never was much of a hand for cavorting around. But just keep one thing in mind—fighters don't forget me."

"Let Tony have his fun now, I'll have mine next Tuesday night. I can beat any fighter in the world today, Joe Louis included. Tony outweighs me more than 20 pounds, but he's small, he has short arms. I've seen his stuff in the ring and I know what to do about it."

"Galento must have something to get where he's got. Otherwise, how could he knock out all those fellows he's met? No, I don't understand Tony, but he's down he's just another fighter."

"To me, he's a step toward a match with Joe Louis for the heavyweight title."

Office Team Cops In Mill League

Kimberly—The office softballers of the Kimberly mill league won their second game by walloping the Woodroom 18-1 at the club diamond Monday afternoon. It was an easy victory for the winners who scored in every inning except the fourth.

In the fifth frame the office boys collected seven runs as Clarence Bourassa hit a homer with two on. In that frame Vander Velden and Wildenberg singled, Lamers doubled while Courchane singled. Bourassa, next up, hit a homer to clean the sacks. The next batter fluted while Gillis got on via an error. G. Versteeg singled and Bud Webb, the last batter in the round, singled but was caught off first. The Woodroom got its lone run in the second frame when Wulterkins got on after an error and Schness doubled.

Dud Courchane, on the mound for the winners, allowed four hits, fanned two and allowed no walks. Van Dyke, pitching for the losers, allowed nineteen hits, walked two and fanned five.

The second game between the Research and Maintenance will be played Wednesday afternoon. At four o'clock Tuesday afternoon the Sulphate will meet the Power department and at six o'clock the Woodyards play the Paper Machines.

Arrange for Extra Seats For Kimberly's Struggle With Former Valley Stars

Kimberly—A great day in baseball will be held at the Kimberly ball park next Sunday afternoon when the regular Papermaker lineup meets the old-timers of the Fox river valley who played in the last fifteen years.

In addition the Community band will be out parading the streets and will march to the ball park where it will take part in a flag raising ceremony which will precede the game.

Butch Thein and Len Smith have rounded up practically every old timer in the valley and indications are that a record crowd will be on hand. The advance ticket sales indicate that both grand stands will be filled. Provisions now are being made to set up extra bleachers.

The oldtimers were out last week for their first workout. The diamond greats of former years took it easy but expect to be in the peak of condition when they tangle with the Papermakers.

The feature of the tilt will be father and son on opposite sides. Marty Lamers, who has made his mark in baseball, will show with the old-timers while his son Jack is the regular Papermaker catcher. Baker Versteeg, who will show with the Papermakers, expects to have his dad out to take a bow. He is a former left handed pitcher and played in many games throughout the valley.

Then there will be Ossie Cook who managed the Kimberly Papermakers in 1926-27 when two outstanding records were made. In '26 the Papermakers won a 17-inning game from Green Bay, 3 to 2, on July 4 while in 1927 the team took the Fox River Valley championship.

The game is a benefit for Hunter Lake who broke his leg in a practice just before the season opened.

Among the oldtimers expected to be out are Boots Lamers, Dago Lamers, Sonny Tornow, Doc Murphy, Jack Lemmers, Freddie Hackbarth, Eddie Kotal, Carl Lemmers, Dats Crowe, Pat Mc Andrews, George Brautigan, Harry Sylvester, Len Smith, Joe Shields.

Harvey Hartjes, George Vander Loop, Joe Muench, Charley Schell, Leo Ragenfuss, Ray Gertz, Hub Williams, Butch Thein, George Eggleston, William Van Zeeeland, Rube Versteeg, Pete Koll, C. O. Baetz, Squaw Pohan and Joe Gossens.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Bill Swift and Johnny Rizzo. Pirates—Swift's relief pitching held off closing threats by Giants in 7-4 Pittsburgh victory; Rizzo opened Pirates drive with three-run homer.

Gabby Hartnett, Cubs—Hit ninth-inning single, with one out, to drive home deciding run in 7-6 defeat of Bees.

Max Macon, Cardinals—Stopped Phillies' ninth-inning rally after three runs had been scored, to give Cards 5-3 decision.

PLANS COMEBACK

Louis "Butch" Thein, above, who has been in and out of a baseball uniform for many years at Kimberly and who has been spending most of his recent Sundays fishing instead of looking for base knocks, will be with the former stars who meet the Kimberly Papermakers at the village park next Sunday. They may not cover as much ground as years ago, but he still swings a wicked war club and he's one of the best sideline jockeys ever to hurl a crack at an opposing player.

Casserole Dishes

To help you solve the ever perplexing question of what to serve for suppers and luncheons, and to find dishes that are appetizing and adequate yet not expensive, I suggest the following casserole dishes.

Delicious, flavory and substantial good nourishment need not be sacrificed in the preparation of dishes which Miss Schneider gilding meat and vegetables. Leftovers can be transformed into truly delicious casserole dishes. Things one can prepare in advance are sometimes an advantage, so with the help of your refrigerator you may make up the dishes ahead of time and store them until you are ready to bake them.

Vegetables En Casserole. combines rice and vegetables with meat stock and makes a delicious and hearty dish. The casserole of spaghetti and meat is very simple to make. If you want to use leftovers, but make something that tastes exceptionally good, try the meat pie, either with the mashed potatoes on top or top it with the brown flaky crust.

Vegetables En Casserole
1 cup rice 4 cups meat stock
1 small turnip, 4 medium-sized cubed
1 cup canned 1/2 thinly sliced
peas 1 teaspoon salt
1 cup canned 1 onion, sliced
tomatoes 1/2 teaspoon pepper
Wash the rice thoroughly. Put ingredients, except stock, in alternate layers in casserole, pour on stock, cover and cook until rice is tender about 3 hours, in a slow oven 350 degrees F. The casserole of spaghetti and meat is very simple to make.

Casserole of Spaghetti and Meat
1 8-ounce pkg. 2 tablespoons fat
spaghetti 1 lb. ground beef
2 medium onions 1 can tomato soup
chopped fine Salt
Cook spaghetti. Brown onion, and meat in hot fat. Add tomato soup and cooked spaghetti. Pour entire mixture into a buttered casserole. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. 30 to 45 minutes.

Meat Pie
2 cups cooked 1 cup cooked
meat, diced carrots, diced
2 cups gravy Mashed potatoes
Combine meat, carrots and gravy and put into a greased casserole. Spread mashed potatoes as a crust over the meat and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. until a golden brown. If you do not have mashed potatoes use 1 cup cooked potatoes, diced, mix with meat, carrots, and gravy and cover with the following crust.

Crust
2 cup flour 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1 egg 2 tbsps. water
2 cup shortening
Beat egg with water. Sift flour, salt and baking powder. Mix as for pie crust and roll out about the thickness of cookies and cover dish with crust. Bake in a hot oven 450 degrees F. 20 to 30 minutes.

A candle may be made to fit any candlestick if dipped for a moment into very hot water. This will soften the wax and it can then be easily pushed in.

Louisville, Ky. — (AP)—There are few Kentuckians who haven't wrapped themselves around a helping (or double helping) of steam-baked burgoos. You find it everywhere you go—at fairs, auctions, picnics, church suppers, civic celebrations and more than anywhere else, political speakings.

What's in burgoos? One is tempted to reply: "everything." Various combinations of meats and vegetables are used, but one that has won long-standing approval is the recipe of the La Fayette hotel at Lexington, in the heart of the bluegrass country that even produced a horse named after the delicacy, Col. E. R. Bradley's Burgoos King won the Kentucky Derby in 1932.

HOW TO MAKE BURGOOS

Here's the famous recipe used at the La Fayette hotel in Lexington:
3 pounds lean 1 head cabbage
beef 6 carrots
2 pounds veal 6 turnips
4 potatoes 2 stalks celery
chicken 6 ears fresh
4 gallons wa- corn
ter 1 gallon canned
6 onions tomatoes
Put the beef, veal and chicken into the pot, add the water and boil until the meat is well done. Remove the meat and cool it. Braise the onions in fat in the pot, until well done but not browned. Chop the meat fine and put it in the pot. The cabbage, also chopped fine, follows. Then dump in carrots, turnips, celery and tomatoes and boil the concoction slowly for an hour and a half, adding water, if necessary, to make three gallons of mixture. When the burgoos is done add the fresh corn, scraped from the cob, cook 30 minutes, more, then season to taste with salt and red pepper.

The number of servings from three gallons depends on the guests' capacity more than appetite, say veterans.

Three gallons of burgoos, the normal recipe, would hardly take the edge from the burgoos appetites of the hundreds who attend the bigger political speakings, though.

At these, one finds pots the size of washing machines—and several of them, sometimes. And the more zealous burgoos makers, with which the rural districts abound, add nearly every product of the Kentucky farm except tobacco in their eagerness to keep up with the Joneses.

Another delicacy peculiar to the South, popular in Kentucky, is spoon bread.

It's golden brown, looks like pudding, and is served and eaten with a spoon, taking the place of other bread at a meal.

Mrs. Sam McMeekin, wife of Louisville's safety director, included it in a cook book she wrote ten years ago in collaboration with Mrs. Morris Flexner.

Because Mrs. McMeekin's husband for years has been associated with the management of Churchill Downs, most recently as steward, she has entertained hundreds of persons from various parts of the country at derby days.

Every year there's a crowd on hand for her Kentucky Derby breakfast on Derby days.

Her rule, she explains, is to "ask

Contract Is Lost by Poor Play

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Yesterday I quoted a hand from Frank Perkins, noted bridge writer, proving that experts often fall lamentably short of expertise. Today's hand, also taken from the recent Masters' Individual tournament, is another case in point. The line that divides a good play from a bad one may be faint and thin, but it is there, nevertheless.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 no trump 1 heart 2 no trump Pass
2 no trump Pass 2 no trump Pass

The contract would have been a laydown against an opening bid lead, but West's actual deuce of clubs opening created a small problem. Declarer could count only four diamond tricks, one club, one heart, and an indeterminable number of spades, depending both on the spade break and on whether or not the opponents could run off a fatal number of club tricks. If the club deuce was an honest fourth best, there was not much to fear in that line, since only three club tricks need be lost. There would not, however, be time to set up an extra heart trick and, with that realization, declarer set out to establish the spades. He led the three from his own hand, and when West ducked, put in the queen. Then, probably without a second's thought, the spade six was led from dummy and the jack was played from the closed hand. When this was slaughtered by the ace, declarer had lost his game! West cashed the king and queen of clubs and his partner's jack was a fourth defensive trick. East then returned a heart and declarer was helpless.

The most he could win was four diamond tricks and an additional spade. Even if there had been no adverse bidding on this hand, declarer's play would have been far from good but, with the bidding that actually took place, his method of attacking the spade suit was inexcusable. West was virtually marked with the spade ace, both from the fact that the spade queen held, and because the ace was a necessary part of West's opening bid. There was no assurance that the spade suit would break 3-3. Hence, after the queen held, declarer certainly should have returned to his own hand with the diamond jack to lead another low spade toward the king. The contract then would have become ice cold. East's spade ace would not have captured an honor, and three spade tricks, instead of two, quickly would have materialized.

Surely a player does not have to be an expert to bring the proper reasoning to bear upon a situation of this type. But, just as surely, experts and average players alike cannot hope for the best results by playing the card nearest to their thumb.

Beauty and You

—by PATRICIA LINDSAY—

A healthy, clear thinking, energetic mind is not only the nucleus of beauty but it is the nucleus of a radiant happy life!

Had I space to quote famous authorities I could convince you that destructive thoughts, or an undisciplined mind, can rob a woman of her health and destroy her happiness.

As you think, your face and eyes express your thoughts. Catch a glimpse of yourself in a mirror as you converse with a friend. Notice how your eyes sparkle and your lips turn upward when you speak gaily. See how quickly a frown appears and your eyes dim when you talk of sorrow or feel sad. Your lips narrow and your eyes partly close when you give vent to anger or gossip maliciously. Would you have believed it?

Do you know that every unworthy thought registers on your face? Haven't you seen women whose countenances reveal their habitual thoughts of malice, selfishness, jealousy? Of course you have. Over indulgence of miserable traits have robbed them of their beauty and happiness.

Don't Be a Neurotic

Sick minds, registered on faces, ward off all human sympathy and love.

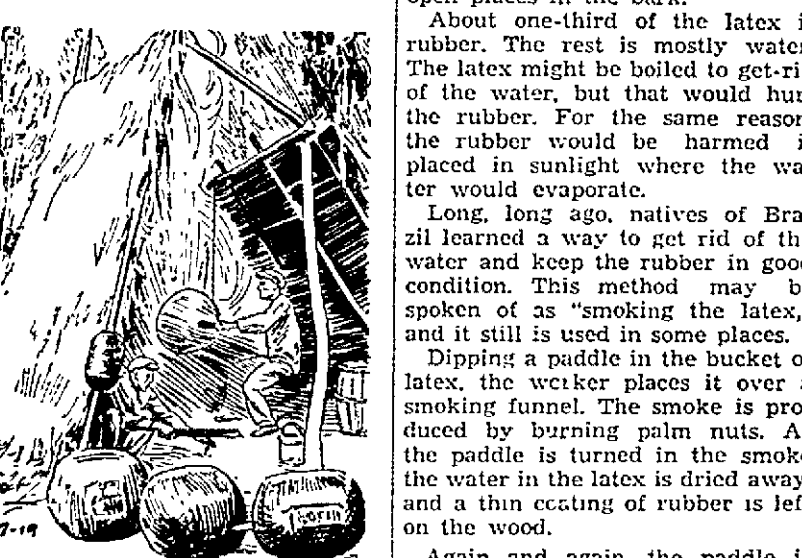

So don't be a neurotic. Keep your mind active, free, and in order. It is the receiving and sending instrument of your entire body. Let it receive wholesome, pleasant messages. Let it send wholesome, pleasant dictations. You know the old adage that "Beauty comes from within"—well it does, from within your mind!

If you have been in the habit of brooding, of becoming easily

The Story of Rubber

As we said yesterday, Brazil became the center of the world's rubber supply. It kept the lead until a short time before the World War.

Smoking para rubber. Notice rubber balls in foreground.

Brazil's output often is called "wild rubber" for it comes mainly from wild trees in forests of the Amazon. How many of those trees there are, we do not know. There may be millions of them in parts of Brazil not yet explored.

Vast numbers of the wild trees have been tapped, however, and the gathering of rubber in Brazil still goes on, though it is not nearly so important as it used to be.

Agents or "gang bosses" of rubber-shipping companies hire workers—largely Indians—to go into the forests. Each man has some small cups, a good-sized bucket, and a hatchet. With the hatchet, he cuts a gash in the bark of a rubber tree. Below the gash, he places one of the cups, then goes to the next tree.

A good worker will do that to from 50 to 100 trees per day. He may walk several miles in a day, for the rubber trees are widely scattered through the forest. At the end of his rounds, he has a good deal of milky juice in his bucket, juice which he has collected in the tin cups.

The milky juice is known as "latex," pronounced "lay-tex." It runs through tubes or veins in bark of the tree.

Again and again, the paddle is dipped into the latex, then turned in the smoke. At last there is quite a ball of rubber around it.

The rubber balls made in this way differ a great deal in size. Usually they weigh from 10 to 100 pounds. Balls of record size weigh several hundred pounds. One huge ball was made by an Indian and his two sons during a period of five months. It contained 1,118 pounds of rubber. This great ball was placed in a boat by the Indians, and they traveled 25 days down the river before they reached a market town where it could be sold.

Child Needs Friends of Own Age and Choosing

BY ANGELO PATRI

Children do not grow up normally, into well-rounded personalities, unless they have friends of their own age, and their own choosing. No grown up person can take the place of this playmate, and none should try. Children live in a child's world where everything is new and strange and mysterious. Each day's happenings are great events, firsts, for the child experiencing them. Hopes and fears spring out of anticipation, and these must be shared, not with a sophisticated, wise adult, but with the eager, expectant, imaginative child.

Much of the exciting happenings of a child's life are an old tale to the adult. He has forgotten all about the thrill, the newness, the eager anticipation he felt in his childhood and youth. He forgets that there was a time when a new wheel, a prize contest, a new girl on the block were world-shaking events in his life. To call such things trifles and silly notions and sheer waste, is to announce oneself as hopelessly adult, hopelessly beyond the stage of chumminess with childhood or youth.

Retracing is no good. Soon the yawn breaks through; the eye wanders, the mind slips off to graver concerns, and the stoddiness of the adult is betrayed in all its drabness. The polite, or the dominated child strives to conceal his discovery and the weariness of spirit it brings him.

But the trial is a failure. It must be. Age cannot play with childhood and youth. Why try?

It is the privilege of age to understand and to guide children. To do that one grows up, leaving childhood and childish things behind. Children need the support of maturity, its outlook, its seasoned strength. They expect certain reserves in grown people and are uncomfortable when they are missing in the adult's manner and behavior. Sons and daughters hate to see their parents trying to be young. They sense something out of nature and try to get away from it as quickly as possible. "Be your age," has meaning below its lightness and fathers and mothers do well to heed it.

Sometimes this attempt to chum with children is an effort to hold on to the child a little longer. It always fails in the end. The child escapes if it is clever enough, or strong enough. Occasionally one yields to the possessive person and is lost, but that is seldom. Most young people are endowed with enough self-interest to evade the clutching spirit, but in any case, it is unwise to subject the child to such a struggle.

Whenever a parent says proudly, "We are inseparable," I am heart-sorry for the child, the price of people's thoughtless words or actions, strive to overcome those tendencies. Ignore hurts and discouragements. Realize that brooding—or worrying—is an insidious form of illness which can destroy a lot you hold dear.

Don't be a woman consumed with self-pity. Don't be a girl consumed with self-pity. Every person has a tough time in life. Every person has problems and hurdles to leap. No life is without sorrow nor is any life without joy! Take life as it comes. Keep yourself healthy and let your mind create beauty!

Husbands Want Wives to Regard Them as Oracles

BY DOROTHY DIX

The second way that husbands want their wives to treat them is as little tin gods. Every man wants his wife to put him upon a pedestal and to burn incense before him. He wants her to regard him as an oracle whose words are pearls of wisdom that she gathers up and preserves.

DOROTHY DIX

In reality that is what every man marries for, little as he may himself realize it. When he picks out a girl for a wife it is not for her beauty, her intellect, her entertaining line, her amiability nor her domesticity, but for her ability to keep his Jos sticks afloat and make him feel that he is as wise as Solomon, as much of a fascinator as Clark Gable and as big and strong as a heavyweight champion.

If women told men as many home truths before marriage as they do after marriage, weddings would be as rare as earthquakes. Why a man should crave his wife's praise above the plaudits of the world, why it should be necessary to him to shine in her eyes, no matter how he looks to other people; why he should be more sensitive to her criticism than any one else's blame, nobody knows. It is just one of the things that are. But whenever you see a man whose wife thinks that he hung the moon, and who begins every sentence with, "John says," as if that settled it, you will find a happy and contented husband.

And, conversely, whenever you find a man who is married to a woman who belittles him, who is always correcting his grammar and his pronunciation and throwing in his teeth how much better other men succeed than he does, you will find a bitter and disgruntled husband, who, more likely than not, is eating out of the hand of some other woman who feeds him angels' food instead of dosing him on gall and wormwood.

Men also have the head-of-the-house complex. With young husbands this is a positive mania. They are uneasy about their authority. Jealous over it. They want their wives to obey them. To ask their advice. To consult them about everything they do.

In reality they don't care a whoop about what their wives really do. They should be bored to death if they actually had to decide whether Mary should join the Current Events club or whether the living room should be papered in pink or blue. And nothing could induce them to risk their lives in department stores and specialty shops picking out Sally's and Jane's clothes. But, all the same, they want Mary and Sally and Jane to ask their permission to buy a new dress and what sort of wallpaper to put in a room. After the wife has made the gesture of recognizing her husband as her lord and master she can do as she pleases and all is well.

Men like their wives to treat them as a sort of beneficent Providence, the source from which all blessings flow. The real reason there is a continual conflict in most families over the money question is not because husbands are stingy, but because they like to dole the money out piece by piece so that Friend Wife has a living exhibition of hubby's generosity.

When a man complains about how extravagant his wife is and how much her hat and dress cost, it doesn't mean that he begrudges her a single garment or the price thereof. On the contrary, it is merely his way of boasting to the world how prosperous he is and how lucky she was to get a husband who could doll her up. If you will observe you will note that the best-dressed women among your acquaintances are always those who keep their glad rags hanging out in public, so to speak, and who are always calling attention, in husband's presence, to some new piece of jewelry, or a pretty frock, or an

QUESTION OF NAMES
Dear Mrs. Post: If a boy is still young so that he is called Master, and he has the same names as his father so he is junior, does one address him as Junior? Or does one omit the junior? Since the title "Master" can't by any chance be confused with the title "Mr." prefixed to the name of his father, the junior added to the child's name hardly seems necessary? Or does it?

No answer. The suffix junior is in no sense a title, and has therefore nothing whatsoever to do with the question of whether Master is or is not prefixed to a name. Junior is just as much a part of the child's name as either John or Smith, therefore an envelope should be addressed Master John Henry Smith, Jr. When he is grown, he will be Mr. John Henry Smith, Jr., or possibly, Dr. John Henry Smith, Jr., for so long as his father lives.

Dear Mrs. Post: Have you ever noticed that people who sing in churches always hold the music in front of them, although I'm sure these people know the words and tunes of the music they have sung for years? I've often wondered if there was any pretext for this.

Answer: There are several reasons why the members of the choir are required to hold a hymn book or pages of sheet music. One of These reasons is the necessity for sumness in any formal group. If one of the singers, for instance, found himself obliged to read from the book, and the other did not, it would destroy the effect of unity—as would hands and arms held in different positions were no books held. Even so, in this, there is a ritual connected with the manner of holding the book and with posture, whether standing or sitting. When they have finished singing they must seal themselves quietly all together, and without looking behind them at the chairs. The clergyman also certainly knows by heart all the prayers he reads, but he too reads them from a book and not from memory. Again this is an exaction of form which is felt by many of us to add to the solemnity of the service because of the fact that it follows a prescribed ritual.

Dear Mrs. Post: When taking my child's nurse-maid to our family doctor for the first time, should she be introduced as Miss Blank, or Miss Mary, or just Mary Blank, or what? She is young, and not a trained nurse.

Answer: Unless there is some reason for doing this, she is not introduced at all. But if there is an especial reason, for instance, if she is to be the patient, you would then say, "This is Mary Green, our Bobby's nurse."

Chapter Six
"You Imitation Bad Man!"
HERE was conviction in Lee's low voice when she spoke. "Moss Hackett is no fourth-rate. If he's bad, when I don't believe for a minute, then he's a cut-throat wolf. He's not the 'bes-man' type. Neither is a coyote. Anybody countered. 'He's a better in the motor. Them as fights and runs away, will live to fight another day.' Now let's talk about the other thing. As a conversation topic, Brother Hackett grows extremely odious."

He was aware that in the darkness her eyes still remained upon his face, he realized his slip almost as soon as he made it and so was not surprised to hear her say: "Where did you learn to sling words around like that?" He answered carelessly, "I wasted a number of years at a university, once," and was relieved that she let it go like that and did not press her. Several moments passed then he put a question to her not caused her breath to be in-drawn sharply.

"What makes you connect what happened in Perso Panto last night with these troubles of your father?" What makes you think someone might be trying to strike at him through you?"

Who said that's what I think?" "But you do, don't you?" "After dragging records she said, 'Yes, slowly. Then, 'You don't miss much, do you?'" "Can't afford to," he answered. "In my business a man has to stay awake." His voice went grim and a little bitter. "It's the price a tremendously odious."

It is expected to have the addition completed in about six weeks.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
New York—(AP)—Stocks zoomed toward the stratosphere in today's market with gains of 1 to more than 4 points putting leaders at new tops since last October.

Profit taking cut down top marks at the last, but favorites were well in front at the sound of the final gong.

Resumption of the mid-year "boom" on the broadest scale of the year today was a further response, brokers said, to the much brighter prospects for business recovery as exemplified by the brisk upturn in steel mill operations, building construction and retail spending, in addition to signs of convalescence from many other recently lagging lines of industry.

Buying orders from all over the country and abroad deluged commission houses at the opening. With blocks of 1,000 to 6,000 shares changing hands on the upside, the ticker tape during the greater part of the first two hours was as much as six minutes behind. The stock exchange "flash" system to report instantaneous quotations from the floor was used occasionally as the regular recording machinery fell in arrears.

The feverish volume resulted in the largest run-up for about 9 months, transfers approximating 2,900,000 shares.

Selected steels, motors, rubbers, mail orders, farm implements, copiers, rails, oils and specialties took the leadership from the start. Utilities were up moderately, but were hardly buoyant.

Prominent stocks on the upswing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Oliver Farm, Kennecott, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Union Pacific, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak and Loew's.

Rail bonds led the loans market on a forward jaunt.

Cheesemakers Tell Department to Agree On Minimum Weights

Madison—(AP)—Cheese manufacturers and dealers told the department of agriculture and markets today it is advisable for the industry to agree to minimum net weights for one-half pound, one pound, and two-pound packages of limburger cheese.

The meeting was called to consider the ruling of the New York state department of agriculture and markets requiring net weight figures on all packages of limburger cheese.

Representatives said they believed it was almost impossible to make the cheese to exact weight requirements but argued that agreements be reached on the three weight classifications named.

Acting Director Ralph E. Ammon said he would notify the New York state department of the sentiment here.

Love on the Range

gun-man pays for continued existence. "But you're not a gun-man—" "Some people have called me one. I can recall a number of occasions—" "Those people were fools," she snapped. The beating of Blur Ankrom's heart stepped up terrifically. "Lee—" he dropped the arm that had lain across the back of the seat upon her shoulders in the earnestness of what he was about to say. "Lee—" But he felt the sudden stiffening of her supple form beneath that arm and the words he had been about to launch were scattered the line of his lips. He removed the offending arm as though it had been burnt.

"I think I'd better go," said Lee coldly. He watched her leave. When she had gone, the bitter mood clamped more firmly down upon him than ever. Her passing left the sulk between them plain. He'd been a fool to ever think—

He stepped from the car, strode toward the lighter space that marked the door. A figure lounging there gazed straight and blocked his path. He read a definite menace in its rigidity.

"Hold on, you!" Ankrom's muscles tensed, that voice belonged to Hackett! "Hackett!"

Ankrom's face reflected no surprise nor showed the faintest tinge of fear. That Hackett was primed for trouble he knew well, for he recognized certain signs to which he was accustomed in men who picked quarrels. He stiffened, but that was all.

A red flame was flickering in Mose Hackett's eyes, his body was bent forward from the waist and his right hand hovered above the pistol at his hip. An ugly snarl twitched his lips:

"Yeah—Hackett!"

"Got something on your mind?" "Your damn well right I have. There ain't no man in Texas can run on me the way you done this afternoon an' get away with it. Go on—shuck your iron, you imitation bad man!"

"The place an' time to stage this melodrama was before the bunkhouse this afternoon. I'm not heeled now, an' you know it." Ankrom eyed the burly range boss coldly. "Thought you told Trone you were leavin' for the southeast line camp."

"What I told Trone ain't none of your business. An' if you ain't heeled that's your tough luck." A wicked jubilation added fuel to the flame in Hackett's eyes. "I'm gonna work you over till your own mother won't even know you!"

With the words he started forward, jerking the pistol from his holster.

Ankrom's soft laugh mocked the range boss's threat. It caused Mose Hackett to draw up swiftly and peer at him through narrowed lids, suspiciously.

"What the hell you laughin' at?" "You," Ankrom laughed again, and watched a dull red stain the range boss's cheeks.

"Why you lousy saddle bum—" Hackett choked, "I'll make you eat that laugh!"

Spread-Eagled Ankrom did not move as Hackett thrust his gun in leather and balled his horny fists, but his eyes became steely. The range boss, looking into them, should have taken warning. Instead, he came forward in a rush as Ankrom backed away.

Then suddenly Ankrom stopped—stopped short in his tracks and struck. That lashing fist took Hackett flush upon the jaw and checked all movement. His body sagged and he took an uncertain backward step or two. Then Ankrom's fist lashed again. Hackett reeled against the stable. A moment he paused spread-eagled there, then slumped inertly to the ground.

Ankrom stood where he was and waited. He wanted this settled now. A minute dragged in silence. Ankrom knew the men inside the bunkhouse had not wind of the affair and guessed that they were watching. But he did not turn. All his faculties were concentrated on that huddled mass that was Mose Hackett. The man might be out, or he might be playing possum. Long experience had taught Blur Ankrom to take no chances.

Another minute passed. Hackett stirred and groaned. His eyes opened and looked dull, uncomprehending. Finally he got to his feet, staggering a little. He was a strong man, injured to danger. Obviously he had never known a pulse of fear till now. But as his eyes encountered Ankrom where he stood as cold and motionless as
